

Senate Committee Calls First Witness

Watergate Inquiry Is Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Determined to "spare no one, whatever his station in life," a Senate committee today opened public hearings on the Watergate scandal that has shaken President Nixon's administration and led even some Republican senators to question his ability to govern.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., dropped the gavel on schedule at 10 a.m. EDT in the vaulted, marble Senate hearing room where the Teapot Dome scandal was aired half a century ago.

As the committee began the first no-holds barred inquiry into the bugging of Democratic Party headquarters exactly 11 months ago, a Republican member said various disclosures about Watergate cast doubt on Nixon's ability to conduct international affairs.

Ervin, the courtly, 76-year-old chairman of the special seven-man Senate committee set up to probe Watergate, asserted in his opening statement:

"My colleagues on the committee and I are determined to uncover all the relevant facts surrounding these matters, and to spare no one, whatever his station in life may be, in our efforts to accomplish that goal."

"We are beginning these hearings today in an atmosphere of the utmost gravity. If the many allegations made to date are true, then the burglars who broke into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee at the Watergate were in effect breaking into the home of every citizen of the United States."

"And if these allegations prove to be true, what they spread political espionage and were seeking to steal was not sabotage—it will threaten the jewels, money or the continued existence of this property of American citizens, but something much more valuable—their most precious heritage, the right to vote in a free election."

Watergate fallout claims another victim. Story on page 40.

More than 200 would-be spectators crowded the marble steps of the Old Senate Office Building hours before the hearings began, waiting in the cool and sunny morning for the doors to open.

Under the glare of hot lights at the specially installed for live television coverage, Ervin, the chairman, broke into the home of every citizen of the United States.

stemming from the Watergate charges of wide-spread political espionage and sabotage—it will threaten the burglary, hundreds of other workers did nothing wrong in the campaign.

"If others are guilty," Odle said, "I hope that they will be exposed and prosecuted. These hearings will help in that purpose."

"The point I would like to make is this: When we discuss the Committee for the Re-election of the President, we should remember there were over a million volunteers across the nation and 400 people at the national headquarters who did nothing unethical or illegal."

"They joined in the campaign because they believed in this President—a President who opened a door to China all too long closed, a President who traveled to Russia and signed substantive agreements while there, a President who brought an end to the longest war in our history."

Odle stressed in an opening statement that while two former workers for the committee—Gordon Liddy and James W. McCord—already were facing prison terms for the June 17, 1972, Watergate burglary, hundreds of other

McCord Planted the Seed

WASHINGTON (AP) — James McCord, the talkative Democratic party headquarters conspirator, planted the seed of disclosure now coming to bloom. He broke the silence that let the Watergate story come tumbling through.

It was an uncharacteristic act for an unusual man, a real-life spy whose world was secrecy and codes and a willingness to do anything for a cause—except take the rap for others.

When McCord steps before the cameras in the opening phase of the Senate's Watergate hearings, he'll be in a spotlight that he helped focus with a clumsily typed letter in March.

Then he stood before a judge prepared to impose a heavy sentence for being caught in the act of burgling and bugging Democratic party headquarters.

The letter, at that time already in Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica's hands, changed it all.

"In the interests of justice," McCord wrote, "I will state the following to you at this time."

And then came three terse paragraphs of allegations:

—There was political pressure applied to the defendants in the Watergate trial to plead guilty and remain silent.

—Perjury occurred during the trial.

—Others involved in the Watergate operation were not identified during the trial, when they could have been by those testifying.

Later the same day, March 23, McCord met with investigators for the special Senate Watergate committee. He talked about point three: He'd been told that John N. Mitchell, Jeb S. Magruder and John W. Dean III planned Watergate with G. Gordon Liddy, his codefendant in the trial.

Another time he talked of point one: The Committee for the Re-election of the President promised money; presidential aides promised clemency in return for stony silence.

And to lawyers in civil suits: McCord talked of point 2: Jeb Magruder lied, he said.

McCord's testimony was so sensational it leaked out before stenographers had a chance to transcribe it. He talked so much that only two days of depositions totaled 330 pages.

He is certain to be the most people in the know could fore-sensational of the early wit-nesses in the Senate's great shake the summit.

Lawmakers Suspend Tax Surcharge

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller, who earlier this session branded talk about a possible tax cut as "totally irresponsible," now is faced with the decision of whether to approve one.

Capitol sources are speculating today that Rockefeller will sign into law the measure approved by the legislature Wednesday which suspends, for at least one year, the 2.5 per cent surcharge on the state income tax.

The $80 million tax break—the first general cut statewide since the waning days of World War II—cleared the Assembly, 134-1, and was unanimously approved by the Senate a few hours later. For the average taxpayer, the bill would mean a savings of $11 a year.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-Woodstock) was among those who voted for the surcharge repeal. A member of the Assembly's Finance Ways and Means Committee, Bell said he hopes the governor will follow the legislature's lead and approve the tax cut.

"It gave me a great deal of satisfaction to cast an affirmative vote for the first tax cut for New Yorkers in many a year," said Bell following

Wednesday's vote. "I hope the governor will honor and respect the judgment and determination of the Assembly to enact a tax cut and I trust he will sign the measure into law."

The lone dissenter was Democratic Assemblyman Arthur O. Eve of Buffalo, who declared he could not "in good conscience" vote for a tax cut which would benefit high-bracket taxpayers more than persons with low incomes.

Despite the overwhelming victory margin in both houses, the surcharge suspension took a lengthy verbal pasting from critics, who claimed other taxes should be eliminated or that the state should restore the $12.50 and $25 income tax credits.

The legislature's two Republican leaders, Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson and Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, hailed the action as a significant breakthrough in halting the spiral of higher and higher taxes.

Generally, the arguments over the measure dealt with whether it was the right tax to eliminate; whether the governor would approve it, and whether state aid to education or welfare should be given priority over a tax cut.

Critics called passage of the measure a "charade" on the ground that the governor was likely to veto it after the legislature adjourns this session.

That contention was disputed by Assembly Majority Leader John E. Kingston and Assemblyman Willis H. Stephens, R-Brewster, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and the sponsor of the tax cut bill. Although Rockefeller, earlier, branded talk of a tax cut as "totally irresponsible," he backed off from that position this week.

Eve, and several other Democrats, declared that, instead of suspending the 2.5 per cent income tax surcharge, the Assembly should have voted to restore the Ways and Means Committee and the $12.50 and $25 income tax credits because that would benefit low-income taxpayers more than eliminating the surcharge.

Court Reverses Dr. Arnold Decision

ALBANY — New York State Supreme Court Justice Edward S. Conway Wednesday reversed an earlier decision by the Acting Commissioner of Education and ruled that the Saugerties Board of Education was entitled to fire Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold.

It is expected that Justice Conway's order will be served on Acting Commissioner of Education Gordon M. Ambach and Dr. Arnold next week, and that the school board will then formally dismiss the Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Arnold, however, may appeal Justice Conway's decision to a higher court. Dr. Arnold is represented by attorney Morris Rosenbloom of Saugerties.

Dr. Arnold was fired by the Board of Education on June 30, 1972. He appealed his dismissal to the Commissioner of Education and, after a hearing in Albany on Nov. 14, Acting Commissioner Ambach ordered the school board to reinstate its Superintendent.

In his ruling dated Feb. 26, 1973, Ambach said that the school board "did not have sufficient cause" to dismiss Dr. Arnold. He said that the failure of the school board to inform Dr. Arnold of its dissatisfaction with him was a "significant factor" in the decision.

A week after the Acting Commissioner's decision, the Board of Education announced it would file an appeal with State Supreme Court. Justice Conway, who received the petition, had the option of determining the effect, reversed the Commissioner of Education and upheld the Saugerties school board. In his decision, he termed the Acting Commissioner's ruling that reinstated Dr. Arnold "erroneous" and "questionable."

Dr. Arnold, however, will remain on the job until he is, once again, formally dismissed by the Board of Education.

Donald Goldstein, a law clerk in Justice Conway's Albany chambers, told The Freeman today that the school board must submit an order to Conway demanding that Dr. Arnold be removed. When the appeal is signed by Justice Conway, it will be served on the Commissioner of Education and based on his ruling on a section on Dr. Arnold as a formal announcement of the Superintendent's dismissal.

Zoning The Topic In Ulster

By CARL GRAHAM

TOWN OF ULSTER

To zone or not to zone? That is the question in the Town of Ulster as the planning board prepares to unveil a master plan and model zoning ordinance in the near future.

Zoning has been debated at great length ever since the town started growing rapidly in the days following World War II. The debate still goes on but so far it is much ado about nothing, for Ulster remains one of the county's three largest towns that do not have zoning laws (along with Wawarsing and Saugerties).

Supervisor Carmine Sabino has had a ringside seat for most of the controversy, first as a member of the Zoning Commission and in his present position.

"We have such a conglomerate that people have learned to live with it," he said of the sprawling 13-mile long town that curls around most of the boundary of Kingston. "They don't seem to have any problems."

The residents of the Town may have learned to live with zoning through necessity, but not everyone agreed that it isn't causing problems.

"Water pollution in the Spring Lake area is just one good example of what can happen when you don't have zoning," said Mrs. Doris Mulvin, an intense, articulate woman who moved into the town from Long Island 20 years ago.

Mrs. Mulvin was one of the original members of the Zoning Commission, formed in the early 60's to work up a zoning plan for the town. She became its chairman in 1968.

Asked to account for the defeat of zoning by the town board and the opposition it has generated among town residents, Mrs. Mulvin said in her estimation it was a general attitude on the part of taxpayers.

She said a contributing factor may have been the town's planning consultant, who she said gave the impression that he "couldn't be bothered with viewpoints of local people."

"The zoning commission members knew they weren't perfect," she said. "We had some good criticism and we made several changes as a result of it. But the planner was an outsider and... she left the sentence unfinished.

Commission members dropped out one by one until she was the only one left and "I didn't feel that I could carry the load alone," she said of the commission's demise.

Special

Sabino says that the town's subdivision regulations and a trailer ordinance give a degree of control even stricter than zoning in some instances. "We have subdivision restrictions that zoning would never give you," he said. "You'd be surprised how many people are satisfied with things the way they are."

Mrs. Mulvin conceded that present regulations can do the job of controlling growth in some areas, but that they leave much to be desired in others.

"We are becoming a trailer town," she said, noting that she had no objections to trailers as long as they are in trailer parks. "The subdivision regulations can't stop things like trailers."

David Brink, chairman of the planning board, said a proposed master plan would be submitted at a public hearing "within the next few weeks." The plan, drawn up by planning consultant Emanuel S. Emanuel of Nyack, would, if approved by the planning board, become the basis for a zoning ordinance. At the same public hearing a model zoning ordinance will be presented for consideration.

Not surprisingly, Herbert Hekler, director of the Ulster County Planning board, is a supporter of zoning. "The only way you can plan properly is through zoning," he maintains.

Hekler says the Town of Ulster is "really an anomaly. People think of the town as Shop City, with severe environmental and functional problems, but there are places in the town as pretty as any in the county."

Hekler said the town, sitting at the most accessible point in the county, has everything going for it—an excellent highway system, the Rhinecliff bridge bringing more than two million people a year across the river, an industrial tax base, the IBM plant, shopping centers, a sewer system now being developed, and the possibility of getting water from the Hudson River if needed.

Hekler said that zoning plays an important part in attracting new business into a community.

"If you want a reputable firm to come in they are definitely concerned with the community," he said. "The plant site is less important to them than the surrounding community. But the companies that want to get away with things, the corner cutters and the sharpshooters, want a community without zoning."

Max Cardiff, manager of consulting services in IBM's real estate division, left no doubt about the importance of the community in the thinking of a large firm considering a new plant site.

Under present standards of selection it's extremely doubtful that Ulster County, that even Kingston where we have a major facility, would be selected," he said at the 1966 Ulster County Natural Beauty Conference. "I say that only as a point of emphasis, how important it is that Ulster County and the Kingston area go to work."

Hekler pointed out that a lack of zoning can hurt a community financially. "Right now people in the Town of Ulster would be eligible for federal flood insurance at cheap rates, but one of the requirements is that they have a zoning ordinance. They have no zoning, so can't qualify."

Hekler denied the frequently heard claim that zoning stops development. "The town of New Paltz has been zoned for a long time and it's one of the fastest growing towns in the county. Zoning doesn't stop development; it guides it."

Sabino, wrestling with a long list of problems in his fast growing town, might be excused if he feels at times that there is no end in sight. But his problems might be taken from his hands if one of Mrs. Mulvin's predictions comes true.

"I think the town form of government is obsolete," she maintains. "County government is inevitable."

Kissinger, Tho Begin Paris Meetings

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met today for the first time in three months in an attempt to close the holes in the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

President Nixon's national security adviser and the member of the North Vietnamese Politburo were expected to continue their latest round of talks for three or four days. Kissinger reportedly wants to be back in the United States before his 50th birthday May 27.

The two men who negotiated the peace agreement in Paris met last when Kissinger visited Hanoi Feb. 10-11. Following a crescendo of allegations by each side that the other was flouting the agreement, the United States and North Vietnam agreed to have Kissinger and Tho meet again in an attempt to make the cease-fire work.

Deputy Asst. Secretary of State William Sullivan and Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach laid the groundwork with a meeting in Paris last month to establish a list of each side's grievances against the other. Informants said they settled none of the issues but helped to clarify each government's understanding of the other's position at that time.

Some diplomats believe that Hanoi may feel its bargaining position has been strengthened since then by the Watergate scandal and by congressional moves to end all U.S. military action in Indochina.

Nixon warned Hanoi in his State of the World message May 2 that continued infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and arms into South Vietnam would risk a "revived confrontation" with the United States. The diplomats said there are signs that Hanoi thinks Nixon would have difficulty carrying out his threat, and there has been no report of a decline in Communist infiltration.

The usually mild-mannered Tho raised his voice angrily when he arrived from Hanoi Monday, denouncing alleged American bombing raids on areas of South Vietnam controlled by the Viet Cong. He ignored U.S. denials of the attacks and said if they were repeated, he would walk out on Kissinger.

It was the first time Tho had voiced such an ultimatum publicly in four years of talks with Kissinger.

Meanwhile, with new Indo-China negotiations opening in Paris, Senate Democratic leaders have given up hope for an early vote to cut off funds for continued bombing in Cambodia. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott declined Wednesday to waive rules that would prevent a supplemental appropriation bill from being called up in recess May 29.

Pollution Charge In Dutchess

NEW YORK (UPI)—A federal anti-pollution grand jury, acting on information supplied by a high school senior, filed a 10-count indictment Wednesday charging a Dutchess County firm with polluting the Hudson River.

The firm, Price Brothers Co. of Beacon, manufacturers of steel reinforced pipe, was accused of discharging liquid cement and oil into the river on 10 occasions last March.

The indictment alleged that the firm discharged the pollutants from its plant on Brockway Road, which was built last year. The U.S. attorney's office filed a complaint in which it asked the court to halt any further discharges.

Major credit for the indictment went to Allen Thorpe, 17, of Chelsea, a senior at Beacon High School, who discovered the discharge while hiking early this year. Thorpe turned over his notes and samples of the discharge to Asst. U.S. Attorney Daniel Riesel.

If convicted, Price Brothers could receive a maximum fine of $2,500 for each of the 10 counts. Young Thorpe could receive half of whatever fine is imposed.

Guilty Plea Entered in Computer Card Case

ELLENVILLE Wednesday in Ellenville Village State Police BCI agents in the parking lot of the Terrace Motel and charged with first degree criminal possession of stolen property when allegedly stolen computer cards with an estimated value of $250,000 were found in their possession.

Douglas J. Hunt, assistant district attorney, withdrew the stolen property charge against Robinson when he appeared before Acting Village Justice Friedman and filed the conspiracy charge to which Robinson pleaded guilty. Robinson, identified as a salesman with a Newburgh firm, was represented by Attorney Timothy Keough of Syracuse.

Haa porne Aytts pirssent-Geou Friedman continued Robinson in $5,000 bail and ordered him to appear again June 26 for sentencing after a probation report is made on him to Friedman.

Final Chapter for Wounded Knee

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — White House officials arrived on the Pine Ridge Reservation today, hoping to write the final chapter to the confrontation at Wounded Knee.

The White House delegation, headed by Bradley Patterson, executive assistant to Leonard Garment, acting White House counsel, arrived by helicopter from Denver, Colo., early today.

A meeting between the delegation and the Oglala Sioux tribal government was scheduled at 9 a.m. MDT. Later today the delegation was to meet with supporters of the American Indian Movement (AIM) which held the historic settlement under siege for 71 days beginning Feb. 17.

The two meetings were necessary because of the open differences between AIM and the tribal government.

Tribal Chairman Dick Wilson, who at one time threatened to lead an assault of the militants holding Wounded Knee said officials were meeting with his group first because tribal government officials would be reluctant to meet with the Patterson group if they met first with AIM.

"The White House recognizes us," Wilson said Wednesday. "They know if they start meeting with every faction they'll be out here meeting all the time."

The meeting with tribal authorities was to be closed to the press and public. However, it was expected that the meeting with AIM supporters and "traditional chiefs" of the Oglala Sioux would be open.

Other federal officials joining Patterson at the talks include Charles M. Soller, acting associate solicitor, division of Indian Affairs, Interior Department; Craig A. Decker, attorney for the Justice Department; Leslie N. Gay, chief of the tribal government section of the Interior Department, and Bobbie Greene Kilberg, attorney and former White House consultant.

Fingerprint is Found At Georgia Death Farm

DONALSONVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — State investigators said late Wednesday that a fingerprint found in a farm home where six members of a family were slain has been identified tentatively as that of a Maryland fugitive, one of the suspects being sought in the case.

Col. William Beardsley, head of the state Division of Investigation, said identification would not be positive until blowups of the fingerprint were studied today.

But he said preliminary study indicates the print belongs to Carl Isaacs, 19, one of three men who escaped a prison work camp in Maryland 12 days ago and, with a teen-age companion, apparently stole a car in Pennsylvania before heading South.

Sheriff Dan White said he was ready to issue murder warrants "immediately" if the fingerprints link the suspects to the crime.

An alert has been issued throughout the South for the men, who were believed to have fled this small town near the Georgia-Florida-Alabama borders after the slayings Monday night.

White was concerned over what the fugitives might do next.

"Usually when something like this happens, they strike again and again. That's the terrible part," said White, who wears a cowboy hat and has a gun strapped to his right side. "All the killers we've had like this, they don't have much to live for, and they know that."

White said there was a possibility the killers may be hiding in wooded Seminole County or in one of the several thousand cabins on nearby Lake Seminole. If the men are caught, he said, he believes they will be safe because "we believe in law and order." But, he said, "I don't see where they could put up any plea for mercy."

Police theorize that the killers followed Mrs. Mary Alday, 24, a pretty brunette, from her job in town to her farm home Monday evening and sexually molested her, then killed her husband, Jerry, 35; his brothers, Chester, 32, and Jimmy, 25; their father, Ned Alday, 62; and their uncle, Aubrey Alday, 57; when they arrived home from working in the fields.

Three of the suspects escaped May 5 from a work camp in Wicomico County, Md., and were identified as Wayne Carl Coleman, 26, serving 10 years for robbery; Carl Isaacs, 19, since the present military about 22 miles north of Lima. It serving four years for burglary; and George Dungee, 35, serving 18 months for contempt of court. Carl's brother, William Newport Isaacs, 15, was reported traveling with them.

Rogers Terms Visit to Peru 'Constructive'

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Wednesday his visit to Peru was a constructive step in improving relations between the two nations. Rogers told Latin American newsmen, "I believe my stay in Peru is a constructive step in improving relations between our two countries."

Rogers said, "I am very encouraged with our relations with Peru. I believe my stay in Peru is a constructive step in improving relations between our two countries."

Later today, Rogers flies to Mexico, Nicaragua, and Peru. After Bogota, where he was expected to deliver a major address on Colombia, he will go to Brazil.

During his 35-hour stay in Lima, Rogers became the first foreign official to see President Juan Velasco Alvarado since May 28.

Colombian officials said strong security measures were imposed to guard Rogers operation.

Against any violence. So far, the only anti-American incidents occurred during Rogers' stop in Caracas, but it was so small and distant that he did not even see or hear it.

Relations between the United States and Peru have been cool since the present military took power in 1968, originally was intended as a major factor was the short courtesy visit but it turned into a longer meeting of oil company assets belonging to a United States firm.

Bombs Blast Belfast Airport

BELFAST (UPI) — Two bombs exploded today on the runway of Northern Ireland's main airport, the first such attack in the nearly four years of political and religious strife in the province.

The army said the explosions at Aldergrove airport, 14 miles outside Belfast, did little damage. The airport remained open and in operation.

British explosives experts rushed to the scene and discovered and defused a third bomb, an army spokesman said.

"The bombs simply were not powerful enough to do much damage," said an airport official. "Operations were not affected."

Three other bombs early today wrecked a Protestant-owned shirt factory and a telephone exchange outside Londonderry, and a news agent's shop outside Antrim.

None caused any injuries. The bombings followed a running battle between British troops and gunmen in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast early today that slightly wounded one soldier. The army said the clashes may signal an offensive by the extremist Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army.

The army did not report its troops hit any gunmen.

Biaggi . . . Another Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Mario Biaggi, refusing to waive his immunity from prosecution, has walked out on a grand jury and into the jaws of his third political crisis in less than one month.

Biaggi himself disclosed Wednesday that he had been asked to appear before the grand jury empaneled by Maurice Nadjari, the special state prosecutor named by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to investigate corruption in the city's criminal justice system.

Biaggi was given a subpoena when he arrived at Nadjari's World Trade Center offices. He then went into the grand jury but left 10 minutes later after refusing to sign the waiver of immunity.

"It's invalid, the whole proceeding is invalid," Biaggi told the grand jurors, according to his lawyer, William T. Griffen.

The New York Times and the Daily News said today that the grand jury reportedly is investigating a case in which Biaggi received a $240,000 legal fee from a now-insolvent insurance company.

A state supreme court justice who has described himself as a long-standing acquaintance of Biaggi played a role in that case.

For the beleaguered congressman, it was the latest in a series of tribulations that have threatened to derail his campaign for mayor. He is running for the Democratic mayoral nomination and his endorsement by the Conservative party is being severely tested.

On Wednesday, several prominent Conservatives, including columnist William F. Buckley, joined one local and two state party leaders in defecting from the party's support of Biaggi.

$3.9 Million Paltz Budget Approved as 'Tentative'

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
The New Paltz Board of Education approved a "tentative" budget of $3,901,945.88 for the 1973-74 school year at its meeting Wednesday night.

Superintendent Dr. James Hicken and board president Mrs. Joan Bivona emphasized repeatedly that the budget was "tentative" and not necessarily the proposed budget to be placed before the district's voters June 13.

The tentative budget, up from the present budget of $3,454,614, will have a public hearing May 21 at 8 p.m. in the Middle School. Having a public hearing so far in advance of the budget vote is an innovation in the

New Paltz Central School District, and will allow the board to modify the budget to conform to the wishes the public expresses at the hearing.

After the board makes its final budget alterations, it will adopt a proposed budget in time to get it into the voters' hands seven days before the annual meeting, scheduled for June 12 in the High School, at 7:30 p.m.

A summary of the tentative budget will be available at the hearing May 21, according to Business Administrator Frank Hamilton.

Representatives of CHILD, Check Into Learning Disabilities, were present Wednesday night to urge that additional funds for learning disabilities, including a resource room, be placed in the budget.

A CHILD spokesman said this part of the High School had been required by state education law. Hicken disagreed, and the High School to be "outpointed out that $2,000 was in the tentative budget for a study of the matter to determine the proper course for the district.

He said his goals, and those of CHILD, were "convergent", though he said there was some difference in the time of implementation. He said a change in the program could be made in the fall of the next school year, and Mrs. Bivona said both the administration and the board were committed to improving and their legislators to fight for the learning disabilities program.

The district and the New Paltz Teachers Association have agreed on a new two-year contract. Hicken complimented the district's chief negotiator, Hamilton, and the negotiation team led by Ron Noelle, for the "very intelligent and professional" manner in which the negotiations were conducted. The contract is to be signed June 1, and Hamilton said after the meeting it contained a five per cent wage boost for the first year, and a cost of living provision covering the second.

Hicken reported the Middle States Association evaluation report of the High School had been received, and said it showed the district is having a problem in the new budget with the amount of state aid it will receive next year. According to Hicken, the budget was drawn up using the 5.5 per cent increase originally proposed by the state legislators, but that program could be made in the fall of the next school year, and Mrs. Bivona said both the administration and the board were committed to improving and their legislators to fight for the learning disabilities program.

The board approved a recommendation from Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum John L. Wyman that all persons over 60 in the district be allowed to register free for all of the district's continuing education courses.

Student members of the high school's Community Services program reported favorably on a visit to the program, and Mrs. Bivona said the board wanted the program continued, and expanded if possible.

Kindergarten Lease Renewed

ELLENVILLE
The Ellenville Board of Education retraced its steps Tuesday night and voted to renew its one-year lease with the Ellenville Reformed Church for kindergarten classroom space.

At the March 27 meeting of the school board, it was decided not to renew the lease with the Reformed Church. The district had been renting four classrooms and a resource room from the church, and had been offered a one year lease with a one year option at $10,000 a year.

With the decision to look elsewhere for classroom space, there was one suggestion from board member Lee Augustine that some sixth grade classes be switched to the high school, and that the kindergarten students be housed in the vacated sixth grade rooms.

That won't be necessary right now, but there were indications that the school board will eventually have to resolve its space shortage problems. The lease agreement with the church is intended only as an interim measure, in order to give the new school board time to come up with an alternate approach.

The school board's approval of the one-year lease extension is contingent upon approval from the church and approval from the State Education Department.

Earlier, the school board had renewed its lease with the Berger and Solomon Agency for the building that now houses the district's administrative offices.

At Tuesday's meeting, the school board also finalized its contractual agreement with the district's clerical workers, granting a one-year pay hike "just under six per cent," according to Superintendent of Schools Thomas Hayden.

Contracts still must be negotiated with the district's custodial personnel and teachers. Agreements have been reached with administrators, bus drivers and cafeteria personnel.

WHITA Hits School Budget

KINGSTON
WHITA (We've Had It Taxpayers Association), claims that with the settlement of new contracts in the Kingston Schools Consolidated District, the anticipated budget deficit could exceed $700,000.

"Hold on to your hat, forget your planned vacations, you'll need your money for school taxes," declared Alice Tipp, president of WHITA, commenting on the district's preliminary $17.3 million budget unveiled Tuesday night.

WHITA said Mrs. Tipp wants to maintain student programs—"This is the production line in the school. When a business is financially pressed it does not cut those that produce the product"—but wants to get rid of "high priced" administrators—"What are we paying those guys for?" she declared. In addition, WHITA suggests that each teacher at the high school and junior high school levels be required to teach an additional class.

A public hearing on the budget will be held on June 20 at the George Washington School. WHITA urges all residents to attend.

Company Is

Low Bidder

KINGSTON
Garfinkle Painting Co. of New Hyde Park was the apparent low bidder at $40,220 at bid openings held Tuesday by the Kingston Housing Authority for the painting of apartments in Rondout Gardens and 10 leased housing units in the downtown area.

The other bid from Pitman and Brown Inc. of Newburgh was for $81,405.

The contract calls for the painting of 131 units at Rondout Gardens, the community room and exterior doors in that project and the painting of 10 leased housing units. This will be the first repainting of Rondout Gardens which reached full occupancy in the summer of 1963.

Bids will be referred to the Department of Housing and Urban Development in New York City for approval.

'History Comes Full Circle'

RHINEBECK—A paper clip in the meter, ittingent of state, county, and plaques for his service, one from William Pollard, who gave 20 registered for ten minutes parking. The testimonial dinner was also attended by a large con-

He was presented with two Village of Rhinebeck. He noted in thanking those who had spoken on his behalf at the Beekman Arms Hotel, alluding to an incident which occurred on Christmas Eve, 1910 when he worked as a furniture clerk at Luckey Platt's Department Store in Poughkeepsie.

Two men had cased that store that evening and had cracked the store safe Christmas Day. They were never caught. Some 60 years later, when Judge Pollard was working for the Village of Rhinebeck he noticed a man inspecting the offices suspiciously. Village Patrolman Walter Schad later arrested that man in the act of burglarizing the village safe.

Judge Pollard, recently retired as village police justice of 13 years after having served two terms as mayor during the 1950's, heard master of ceremonies Emmett Donahue, former state police investigator, say, "He didn't wait until the next day when I called him—he got out of bed and came down on many cold winter nights."

Donahue remembered: "He threw a case out on me once. He said it could not be successfully prosecuted. He was right."

Others paying tribute to Judge Pollard at the large turnout included Dutchess County Court Judge Raymond Aldrich Jr., who noted that his father, the former Judge Raymond Aldrich, had administered the pledge of allegiance to Judge Pollard when he became an American citizen about 50 years ago.

Judge Aldrich noted that William Pollard and his family "go back to 1900. He and my dad and mother were personal friends." And he remembered that Judge Pollard was born in Bristol, England in 1891, the son of a Baptist minister. He worked for 56 years in the furniture business, first in Poughkeepsie and later in Rhinebeck.

Joseph Gellert, former Dutchess County District Attorney remarked: "They wouldn't have recommended the abolition of local justices if they were thinking of Judge Pollard."

Judge Bolger, president of the Dutchess County Magistrates Association, remembered that he and Judge Pollard had been "schoolmates" together ten years ago in a special training class at Fordham University.

Supervisor William Allen of Rhinebeck said that the judge could always say, "I did my part because I got involved."

Peter F. Sipperley, mayor of Rhinebeck, remembered that he had been supervisor for a day in 1951 when a Boy Scout during a Youth in Government Week. Judge Pollard, as mayor, was giving a demonstration of parking meters, showing that paper clips would not jam the new meters.

"What he forgot," said Sipperley, "was that when he put

Length of School Board Term Placed on Red Hook Ballot

RED HOOK I wouldn't vote in favor of this," 23 to Brickman's Hotel in South meeting of the Mid-Hudson School Study Council's School Board Institute at the Camelot Inn, Poughkeepsie May 31.

Whether or not to shorten a Red Hook Board of Education member's term from five to three years will be on the June 13 ballot in the school district.

Following a citizens petition circulated by members of the Red Hook Taxpayers Association, the board voted earlier this week to put the question to the voters along with voting for candidates and the school budget next month.

Two board members who expressed opinions on the matter, however, did not agree that the term should be shortened. If passed, this measure would not take effect until 1974.

Francis Rabbett, up for reelection this year, said that the district had had great success with the present method and added that shortening the term would shorten the time needed to become a fully informed board member with the complexities of the education field today.

He stated that a continuous turnover of members would hamper the board, and said the district benefits from in depth involvement.

"After 15 years as a member said Rabbett, "There is no apparent need to change."

William Taylor, the newest board member of two years, said that since it was a part time job it "surely takes a good two years to understand the education system. . . . As an average guy, I feel the longer term is needed," he said.

Reasons cited by the taxpayers included flexibility and more accountability.

The Concerned Parents-Teachers, a new organized P-TA-styled group, was given board approval.

Damages amounting to $3,491 to the Mill Road School during a power outage last winter will be mostly assumed by Central Hudson, said District Principal Russell Keefe, although some items are negotiable.

Keefe noted that members of the school's music department had purchased an electronic synthesizer through fund raising.

The board approved senior class requests for holding the senior prom June 1 at the Beekman Arms Hotel in Rhinebeck, and taking the senior trip May

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 16, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — At the center of the Watergate web, investigators now believe, is the deposed White House major domo H. R. Haldeman. Most of the strings in the Watergate tangle seem to lead back to him.

String No. 1 — Most of the men implicated in the scandal belonged to his tight little circle. Such key Watergate figures as John Dean, Jeb Magruder, Dwight Chapin and Gordon Strachan reported directly to him.

String No. 2 — Haldeman was such a meticulous manager, investigators have concluded, that the Watergate operation couldn't have occurred without his knowledge. He stayed behind the scenes, using loyal aides to do the dirty work. He kept them on such a tight leash, as one insider put it, that "they couldn't sneeze without his permission." During a presidential appearance that Chapin scheduled, for instance, another aide asked Chapin to arrange for President Nixon to walk five feet out of his way to greet an important labor leader. Chapin said he couldn't do it without Haldeman's approval.

String No. 2 — Jeb Magruder has told prosecutors that ex-Attorney General John Mitchell opposed the Waterbugging, although he went along reluctantly in the end. It was Dean, according to Magruder, who kept insisting on going ahead with the scheme. Dean, in turn, has said he took his directions from Haldeman.

String No. 4 — Haldeman controlled a $350,000 cash fund that apparently was used to bribe the Watergate defendants to keep their mouths shut. The money was delivered by Haldeman's assistant, Gordon Strachan, to the apartment of campaign aide Fred LaRue. Like the others, LaRue was also a Haldeman loyalist.

Investigating Haldeman
Not long after the Water buggers were arrested, our White House sources tipped us off that the plot had Haldeman's imprint all over it. Although these sources had demonstrated their reliability in the past, we knew they disliked Haldeman intensely.

We therefore investigated cautiously and could find no direct Haldeman involvement.

But we were able to report on August 22, 1972, that Haldeman was calling the political shots for President Nixon. "Operating out of the White House on government salary," we wrote, "Haldeman has tried to remain the invisible man of the campaign."

"But we have established that most of the important campaign decisions have come through him. Haldeman issues political directives, approves campaign contracts, receives political reports and coordinates campaign activities. . . Those on the inside say he is the most powerful man in the 1972 campaign, second only to the President himself."

It took us until February 25, 1973, before we could link Haldeman's name for the first time to Watergate. Still, we could only report that "the Watergate tracks (lead) right up to Haldeman's door." We noted that FBI agents had been forbidden from questioning him. "Yet," we wrote, "they were able to trace Watergate clues to Haldeman aides, who never make a move without asking Haldeman."

Then we described how he operated. "Haldeman, exercises his power," we reported, "from behind the scenes, carefully staying in the darkest part of the President's shadow. He has surrounded himself with bright, disciplined, younger men who don't question his instructions."

"He deliberately brought them to the White House from comparative obscurity, with few political ties, and, therefore, less risk of divided loyalties. Their loyalty to Haldeman, say our sources, exceeds even their allegiance to the President."

Diagnosis of Haldeman

Haldeman has been described in news accounts as a pragmatist, a managerial type, who was more interested in efficiency than ideology. This is not the impression we get. On the contrary, he has strong convictions, which he sought to impose upon the country. Like the President, Haldeman grew up in California when it was still the golden state, with orange groves, clean air and a feeling it was indeed the land of promise. His grandfather migrated to California early in the century, made a small fortune as a building supply dealer and started the Better America Foundation in 1922. Haldeman's father, echoing the religious fundamentalism of Nixon's Quaker mother, devoted considerable energy to the Salvation Army.

There has been no hint that Haldeman pocketed any of the campaign cash that passed through his hands. He used it strictly to gain political power and achieve political goals.

Those who know Haldeman describe him as the sort of ideologue who would violate the law to achieve law and order. He believes fiercely in the righteousness of the Nixon cause. To this end, Haldeman sought to bolster the power of the White House.

He spoke privately of "one-man rule," of President Nixon's "right" to run the country. As Haldeman saw it, the President was the only official elected by all the people. Haldeman felt this gave Richard Nixon a mandate, particularly after the 1972 landslide, to set the nation's policies and, if necessary, to ride roughshod over Congress, whose members in individually represented limited constituencies.

The President, in turn, delegated much of his power to Haldeman. Explained a White House source: "The President had a dread that the demands of office would leave him no time to think. Bob Haldeman freed the President from the details that otherwise would drain his time."

Some Tax Breaks

It doesn't appear that the nation's tax laws will undergo any wholesale revision this year but since we're grateful for even slight gains, the package submitted to the House by Treasury Secretary George Shultz should win favor with the American public.

Probably of greatest interest to Hudson Valley residents is his proposal for a tax credit of up to $200 for tuition for each child enrolled in a parochial or private elementary school or high school.

The credit would be no more than 50 per cent of the yearly tuition for taxpayers with incomes up to $18,000.

The secretary did not go into detail on this phase of his tax program and undoubtedly the constitutionality will be challenged in the event of his proposals are accepted. But it is evident that parochial schools are no better off this year than they were last year or the year before. Thus, the prospects of their closing and their student bodies entering the public schools are still with us, putting a strain on the educational systems of area communities that none is in a position to accommodate to.

And since President Nixon himself has gone on record as favoring some form of relief in this situation, the chances of acceptance of the tax credit seem considerably improved.

This is just one item in a comprehensive list that also includes a double-edged weapon against tax shelters that have been used in the past by wealthy persons to pay little or no income tax despite large incomes.

The Cabinet member proposed elimination of the minimum tax provision adopted in 1969 to deal with alleged loopholes. Instead he urged that Congress approve a minimum taxable income that would bar wealthy taxpayers from using tax preferences to offset more than half of their income.

Affected would be oil depletion allowances, half of long-term capital gains now excluded and income earned overseas. Additionally, Mr. Shultz proposed a new limitation on what he termed "artificial accounting losses." He listed such things as hobby farms, livestock syndicates, intangible drilling costs and accelerated depreciation on new buildings.

This will not answer the critics in and out of Congress who have been calling for complete elimination of loopholes. But—one step at a time. Mr. Shultz estimates an additional billion in taxes would be raised from these provision from people he says are not now paying their fair share.

There are other provisions including a "simplified tax return." We've heard that one before. But the treasury boss maintains this one will work. Its principal change is establishing an automatic $500 miscellaneous deduction allowance but eliminating deductions for such items as gasoline taxes and sick pay and making it more difficult to claim alimony, union dues and other fees.

There are benefits for homeowners and for persons over 65, in other words an intelligently prepared package with a little of something for almost everyone.

Ranchers vs. Housewives

It was housewives' high prices for beef against the low margin of profits in cattle ranching. A "truth squad" from the American National Cattleman's Association visited consumer groups in New York and Washington. The idea was to iron out the differences between them. The result was chaos.

The truth squad includes two women, "cowbells" the eastern consumer housewives called them. Mrs. Marion Tyler of Bismarck, N. D., trying to establish a rapport with the New Yorkers, told of what it was to be poor. "Why, we grew up eating beans. I ate so much bread I don't like to eat it today." And Mrs. Mary Woodward of West Liberty, Ohio, told of how she has to tighten her belt all the time, "because we need a new tractor—but the bank and the feed store must be paid first." The ranch wives pointed out that most consumer items have increased in price far more than meat.

Getting down to cases, the cattle-men said most of their 10,000 members owned an average only of 440 head of cattle, compared with the 300 needed for bare marginal support of a family. And Wray Finney of Fort Cobb, Oklahoma, quoted the average price for 100 pounds of cattle as $33 in 1951, staying there for two decades, and only recently rising to $45.29. "That means I went 20 years without a raise." He said it takes 2½ years and a big investment to ready a steer for slaughter.

The housewives were not convinced. They only know the high prices they pay for beef at the counter. But it is only fair to hear the other side.

As It Might Have Gone

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.
I wonder how it would have gone over?

Ladies and gentlemen: The events surrounding the so-called Watergate case bring me once again to report to you directly.

Last August I told you that an investigation revealed that no one working on the White House staff was involved in any way in the Watergate case. At that time other rumors were floating about suggesting that the White House was also involved in discreditable tactics involving the Democratic primaries. On the basis of the disclaimers I made about Watergate you were entitled to assume that I was also denying any White House participation in, or knowledge of, these other tactics.

But the fact of the matter is that I accepted the office of President because I was willing to take the responsibility of being the top man in this massive organization. Now as President, I depend on aides who in turn depend on aides. The line of responsibility extends from me to the civil servant hired yesterday to sweep the floors, and to the least volunteer in my political activities. John Ehrlichman and Robert Haldeman have let me down. I say this with an overwhelming sense of sorrow, even as fathers are sometimes forced to say that their own sons have let them down. This is not the time or the place to tell you about their strengths and their virtues. It is an ugly but perhaps necessary part of the human story that at any given moment society concentrates exclusively on a man's transgressions. Under the circumstances I have no alternative but sadly to dismiss Mr. Ehrlichman and Mr. Haldeman. But theirs alone is not the blame. I am not your President because I am naive. I should have sooner than I did have suspected a complicity between White House staff members and the initiators of the Watergate conspiracy and other practices. My own enthusiasm for my own election, my own contempt so frequently expressed in public and in private for the lawlessness of some of those who opposed Administration policy, both during my Administration and the previous Administration, unquestionably transformed zeal into lawlessness. There were signs all about me that I should not have mistaken. Examining my conscience I can see that I should have acted earlier, that I should have interpreted things I heard differently; that I was deeply wrong to attempt to discourage the elicitation of the truth.

I have however been elected President very recently and by a huge majority of the American people, and I will not trivialize that election, or disrupt the stability of the Constitution, or convulse the Administration by any heroic gesture of resignation. But I have earned humiliation. If after the Senate committee is done investigating this sad, sordid affair, the majority members of the Senate vote to censure me for my role in it, I shall accept that censure with a heavy heart, but with full respect for the integrity of my judges. Thank you, and goodnight.

Lodge Did Well Except for Title

By MARTIN F. NOLAN

WASHINGTON — In 272 concise, digestible pages, Henry Cabot Lodge has set down his life story. With a sense of humor as well-balanced as his sense of history, the former reporter, senator, ambassador, international debater and Vice Presidential candidate says it all neatly and sweetly, with a troubadour's eye for sublime detail.

But Lodge's book is burdened by that curse of the memoirs racket, a positively dreadful title. He calls it "The Storm Has Many Eyes," apparently in some atavistic bow to Nantucket ancestors. More's the pity because his book is witty and unstuffy.

Book publishers ought to get together to improve the baptism of official memories. They suffer ferociously from overblown attitudes, l'etat-c'est-moi metaphor and a lust for cosmic significance.

Diplomatic memoirs, in general, are not nearly as bad as their titles. Dean Acheson called his "Present at the Creation" in keeping with his concept of modesty, but it is well-written, if not humble.

Kennedy Administration literature reeks of soap-opera titles. "To Move a Nation," by Robert Hilsman, "A Thousand Days" by Arthur Schlesinger and his Vietnam sequel, "The Bitter Heritage," not to be confused with Milton Eisenhower's "The Wine Is Bitter."

Maxwell Taylor, the poet-paratrooper, relied on the Old Testament, giving us first "An Uncertain Trumpet" and later "Swords and Plowshares."

Americans are not the only politician-writers afflicted with grandiose titles. Harold Macmillan, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, wrote one that sounded like a soap commercial. "Tide of Fortune." And, for a proprietary attitude, you can't beat Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban, who called his book, "My Country."

The great names in European diplomacy contributed heavy titles in multivolumed, morocco-bound sets. Charles de Gaulle wrote "A Call to Honor" and Winston Churchill used meteorological metaphor in "The Gathering Storm" through "Triumph and Tragedy."

When American politicians copy the idea it doesn't carry the same weight somehow. It may have been all right for Adlai Stevenson to call his collection of speeches "A Call to Greatness," but when senators paste together the efforts of their speechwriters and researchers, they should avoid ponderous titles.

They don't. "To Seek a Newer World" was the Tennysonian title for Robert Kennedy's speeches. Hubert Humphrey countered with "The Cause Is Mankind." Edward Brooke offered "The Challenge of Change," with Edward Kennedy gravely gazing at "Decisions for a Decade." Jacob Javits entered "Order of Battle." Mark Hatfield's memoirs were called "Not Quite So Simple."

Eugene McCarthy wrote "Year of the People" about 1968, when he really meant the year of Eugene McCarthy.

This whole process may be called the Stassenization of political writing. Campaign biographies are trite enough, but autobiographies should not be so solemnly lest they seem ridiculous.

They are better reading and better history when they are trivialized with pleasant anecdotes about the mighty. This is all Henry Cabot Lodge tried to do and he did it well, save for the title.

SCORE... Back on Target

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Project SCORE has put a winter of discontent and delay behind it and again appears to be on target to "bring back a neighborhood."

SCORE — Strand Community Organization for the Rehabilitation of the Environment — has now taken title to three buildings on the Strand, numbers 13, 15 and 17 and will have volunteer work crews in No. 15 this week. "We're finally ready to go," said Ronald Robinson, president of SCORE.

Title from the city to Larry Nye of Woodstock to Project SCORE (Nye remains as vice president of SCORE) was transferred last week clearing its way for actual rehabilitation work to begin. Present at the title transfer in Mayor Francis R. Koenig's office were the mayor, Robinson, Nye, vice president, William Matabane, secretary of SCORE and David Mpongo, treasurer.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell at the request of Robinson has written to the New York State Council on the Arts, recommending the project and seeking on behalf of its sponsors, some $80,000 to carry it out. A decision on that request is expected within the next few weeks.

In the meantime, SCORE is appealing to the public for records and photographs of the Strand section of Rondout "in its heyday." "We want to restore the buildings to their original (exterior) condition," Nye said. There seems to be no lack of volunteers to work in the buildings: Robinson says a work crew of some 20 persons has already volunteered, many of them persons who will be living in the buildings once they are B & H Automotive Datsun refurbished. Plans call for three apartments in the four-story No. 15 West Strand; eventually nine to 12 apartments in the three sold balloons filled with helium, buildings, depending on need courtesy of Smith Welding. And the size of the families, there was a good deal of interest expressed by the public while enthusiasm remains stopping by the SCORE booth at Expo.

In addition, seminarians from Mt. St. Alphonsus in Esopus contributed $2,000 toward the project, but most of that was clothing store on Abel Street, used to pay Nye the $1,375 he with proceeds going to SCORE.

Chief Glassman Discusses Bicycles

KINGSTON Drive your bike safely every day, not just during May, which is American Bike Month, Kingston Police Chief Julius Glassman advised today.

Glassman said cyclists should make sure they "drive" their bikes, not just ride them, because when a cyclist gets into traffic he has the same responsibilities and rights as the motorist who is driving his car.

The Chief emphasized the responsibilities of cyclists as well as motorists in preventing accidents. Statistics show that the cyclist is to blame as often as the motorist, he said.

Noting that the increased popularity of the bicycle is here that a model of that bike has been tested by an independent testing laboratory.

Glassman also noted that the domestic bicycle industry is cooperating in front and a red light or state approved reflector in the rear, have a clear-sounding horn or bell to warn others of your approach; slow down at all intersections, look both ways, then proceed with caution; always give pedestrians the right of way; watch out for cars pulling into traffic or for doors opening; don't carry passengers or packages that interfere with your vision or control; and always use proper hand signals for stopping and turning.

Glassman said that everyone should make certain his bicycle is in good order. Additionally, he noted that the industry is urging customers to look for a "BMA/6 Seal of Certification" on new bicycles which assures that a model of that bike has been tested by an independent testing laboratory.

DID YOU HEAR THE ONE ABOUT THE TRAVELING SALESMAN WHO GOT A FREE HIGHWAY EMERGENCY KIT WITH HIS NEW CAR LOAN?

"That's a very beautiful emergency kit," said the traveling salesman; "it certainly would be a handsome addition to the new car I'm planning to buy."

"Well," replied the Chase Manhattan loan officer, "anyone who takes out a new car loan from Chase between May 1st and June 30th gets one of these kits free."

The traveling salesman did not want to appear too anxious in front of the banker. "Is it practical?" he asked.

The banker smiled, opened the luggage-like carrying case and began describing the contents.

"An aerosol fire extinguisher, good for all types of small fires, even electrical, oil or grease."

"An aerosol tire inflator, with a latex sealer that inflates and seals flat tires in less than a minute."

"An emergency blinker with a large suction cup base that you can position on your car top or the roadside. It's visible for miles."

"A high-intensity spotlight with a 12-foot cord that plugs into your cigarette lighter."

"Eight-foot booster cables. Six-foot gas siphon pump. A first-aid kit complete with a 25-page first-aid book."

The salesman was amazed. "And you're giving this away? Free? Why it must be worth at least $19.95 retail!"

"Exactly," answered the banker. "You have a good eye for value. Were you ever a banker?"

"No," said the salesman, "I work for a living."

The banker did not laugh. Oh, he was friendly enough, but after all!

"There's only one problem," said the salesman. "I may not be able to pick out the car I want before June 30th."

So the banker told him that if he signed up now, Chase would reserve his car loan for 100 days at no charge. Not only would he get his free highway emergency kit as soon as the loan was approved, but he'd have plenty of time to shop around for a good deal on a new car. So the salesman signed, and left the bank convinced that this was the best car loan deal he had ever experienced.

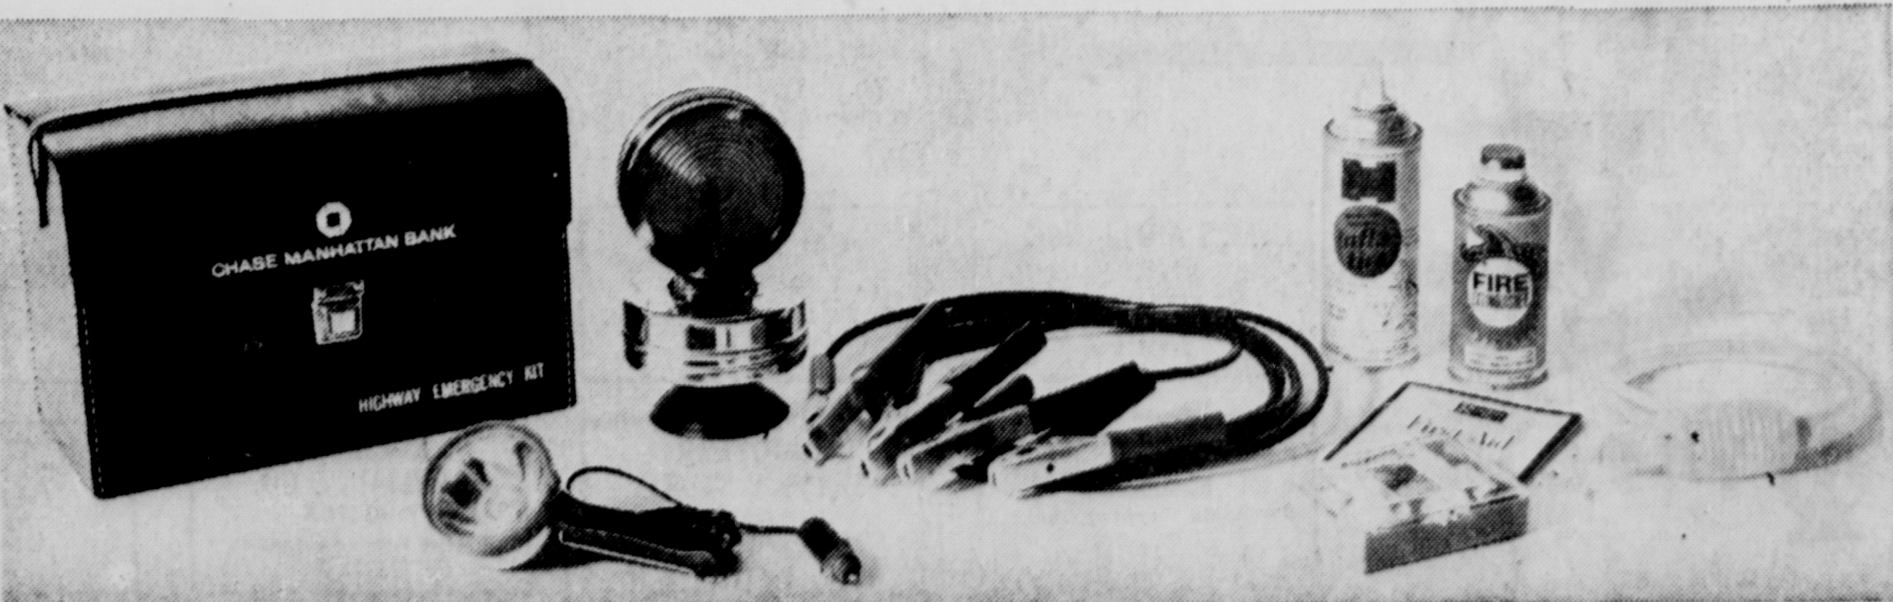

If you're a traveling salesman, doctor, painter or anybody looking for a practical, worthwhile free gift with your car loan, we hope this particular traveling salesman story will make you smile—all the way to our bank.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened lower today on the heels of more bad news for the investor, a government report that the inflation rate in the last quarter was the highest it had been since 1951.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down almost a point and declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange edged out advancing issues 140 to 123.

Analysts said the market would be watching the Watergate hearings closely today and added that any dramatic disclosures could have an effect on the supersensitive market.

Reserve Board Cools Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has moved to cool the nation's economy by tightening the supply of money member banks have available for business loans.

The board Wednesday ordered member banks to raise their reserves from 5 to 8 per cent on the amount of increase in their large outstanding certificates of deposit. The action takes effect June 7.

Banks issue certificates of deposit in exchange for money deposited for specified periods of time. Higher interest is paid on the certificates than on regular savings accounts.

Certificates are a major source of funds that banks acquire and lend to businesses at higher interest rates.

By the increased reserve requirements, the board is forcing member banks to set aside a greater percentage of their new funds.

If a bank had $20 million outstanding in deposit certificates in the week ended May 16 and increased that amount to $25 million, that additional $5 million would be subjected to the 8 per cent reserve requirement.

Under the new directive, the bank would be forced to set aside $400,000 in reserves, rather than the $250,000 under the old regulation. This would withhold $150,000 that, in the absence of the directive, would have been available for lending to businesses.

The board also removed the ceiling on interest rates that banks may pay on certificates of deposits in amounts of $100,000 and over. But the increase will not apply to banks with total outstanding certificates of less than $10 million.

About $1 billion in certificates of deposit is now outstanding, $800 million more than at the start of the year, said the board.

The board, which asked banks to observe the "spirit as well as the letter" of its actions, said business borrowing from commercial banks increased by about $15 billion during the first four months of the year. That amounts to an annual rate of increase of about 15 per cent, compared to last year's 11.5 per cent.

The board Wednesday ordered member banks to raise their reserves from 5 to 8 per cent on the amount of increase in their large outstanding certificates of deposit. The action takes effect June 7.

The first hearing was held last week in the Ulster County Office Building but PSC officials contended they needed more space and set up the second. At issue is a request by Hudson Valley Water Company for a rate increase of some nine per cent.

That rate increase has been ordered held in abeyance until July 1. A spokesman for the PSC told The Freeman today that a decision would be forthcoming before that deadline.

$25 Million School Aid Plan Revealed

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — School officials across the state were doing some fiscal figuring today in efforts to determine how much help they might obtain from $25 million in additional school aid from the state.

Governor Rockefeller, Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson and Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea Wednesday unveiled the $25 million plan, which includes a 2.5 per cent boost in basic operating aid.

Many school districts, forced to prepare budgets already, have been basing their spending levels on the hope of obtaining up to a 5.5 per cent additional increase in aid.

The boost, along with $98 million in additional funds for school aid approved earlier this session, will bring state aid to schools in the 1973-74 school year to $2.55 billion.

In addition to the 2.5 per cent increase in operating aid, the three GOP leaders said they had agreed to:

—An increase in high tax aid to districts with exceptionally high tax rates.

—Extension of the present textbook program to provide free textbooks to elementary pupils in both public and parochial schools.

—Continue the "save harmless" provision that guarantees no school district receives less operating aid than the previous year. He calculated that a 5.5 per cent boost in state aid would mean a possible local tax reduction of 70 cents a thousand cent increase.

Assemblywoman Constance E. Cook, R-Ithaca, chairman of the Education Committee, noted that the extension of the textbook aid was a new program and one that she supported wholeheartedly.

Commenting on the proposal, Mrs. Cook said the distribution method, based on operating aid and extra funds to high-tax districts, was fair in that it would provide badly needed money for poorer school districts and would not increase the spending gap between the poor districts and the wealthy school systems.

Regarding the amount of added aid, Mrs. Cook said, "Frankly, I wish there had been more (money) but because of the uncertain economic climate this apparently was all we could get."

Local school leaders across the state had been pressing for the 5.5 per cent increase, which would have resulted in a $50 million boost.

Albert E. Roberts, secretary of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and one of the states' top fiscal experts, downgraded the importance of the 5.5 per cent increase compared to 2.5 per cent.

Roberts recently said that, if the state was going to do something "significant" to aid

Vassar Dedicates $3.5 Million Hall

ACCOUNTANT'S SPEAKER — Raymond M. Pezzo will address the Mid-Hudson Chapter, National Association of Accountants, at its monthly meeting May 21 at the Newburgh Holiday Inn. POUGHKEEPSIE and Lydia Stokes of the class of 1917. It was Mrs. Stokes' sister Mary Babbot Ladd of the class of 1908 who anonymously gave Vassar College has officially dedicated its new $3.5 million central dining hall in Students' Building.

Approximately 140 guests, including the college's Board of Trustees, attended a pre-dinner reception last weekend to witness the unveiling of several plaques and listen to four brief speeches.

The facility, an objective of the college's $50 million Capital Campaign, was designed by the architectural firm of Walker O. Cain and Associates of New York, which is descended from the firm that designed Students' Building.

Vassar President Alan Simon addressed guests before dinner, and after dinner remarks were delivered by Board Chairman Elizabeth Runkle Purcell, Trustee Mary St. John Villard, crowded, too costly and too inefficient to continue.

Students' Building was selected because of its spaciousness, the convenience of its location, and the soundness of its construction.

Except for the addition of two small one-story wings at either side of the building, the external appearance has not been greatly changed by the renovation. The cupola and four white columns in the front remain and the red brick used in the new wings is consistent with the building's original Georgian simplicity.

The interior, extensively changed, is well lit by large windows through which the surrounding greenery of the campus can be viewed and by bubble-shaped skylights in the east and west wings, as well banquet hall capable of seating heavy, the total capacity of as by artificial lighting set in up to 550 persons. When demand 1,150 to 1,200 seats will permit is low, dining can be limited the entire student body to flow the ceilings.

The renovations include a to small areas; when it is through at any one meal.

IT'S GOOD TO HAVE MONY IN YOUR FUTURE

You decide.

When it comes to 5% savings accounts, you have a choice between the "regular" account and the increasingly-popular "day-of-deposit to day-of-withdrawal" account. We at Heritage recommend the day-of-deposit account for most people. Here's why.

Most people seem to make withdrawals to meet unexpected needs—and these are anything but regular. Thus, the account that's best for most depositors is one that permits withdrawals at any time without loss of interest, as long as a balance of $10 remains. And that's your day-of-deposit account.

With this account, your money earns 5% interest, with an effective annual yield of 5.20%. So, at Heritage your money earns the highest interest rate permitted by law, without the risk of losing interest for the entire quarter through premature withdrawals, as with the regular savings account.

Of course, some depositors still prefer the regular account. They find that, for their purposes, the advantage of earning interest from the first of the month on money deposited as late as the 10th outweighs the disadvantages of less flexibility in making withdrawals. For most people, however, the day-of-deposit account works out best, so we recommend it. But you decide. You know you best.

The Other Day

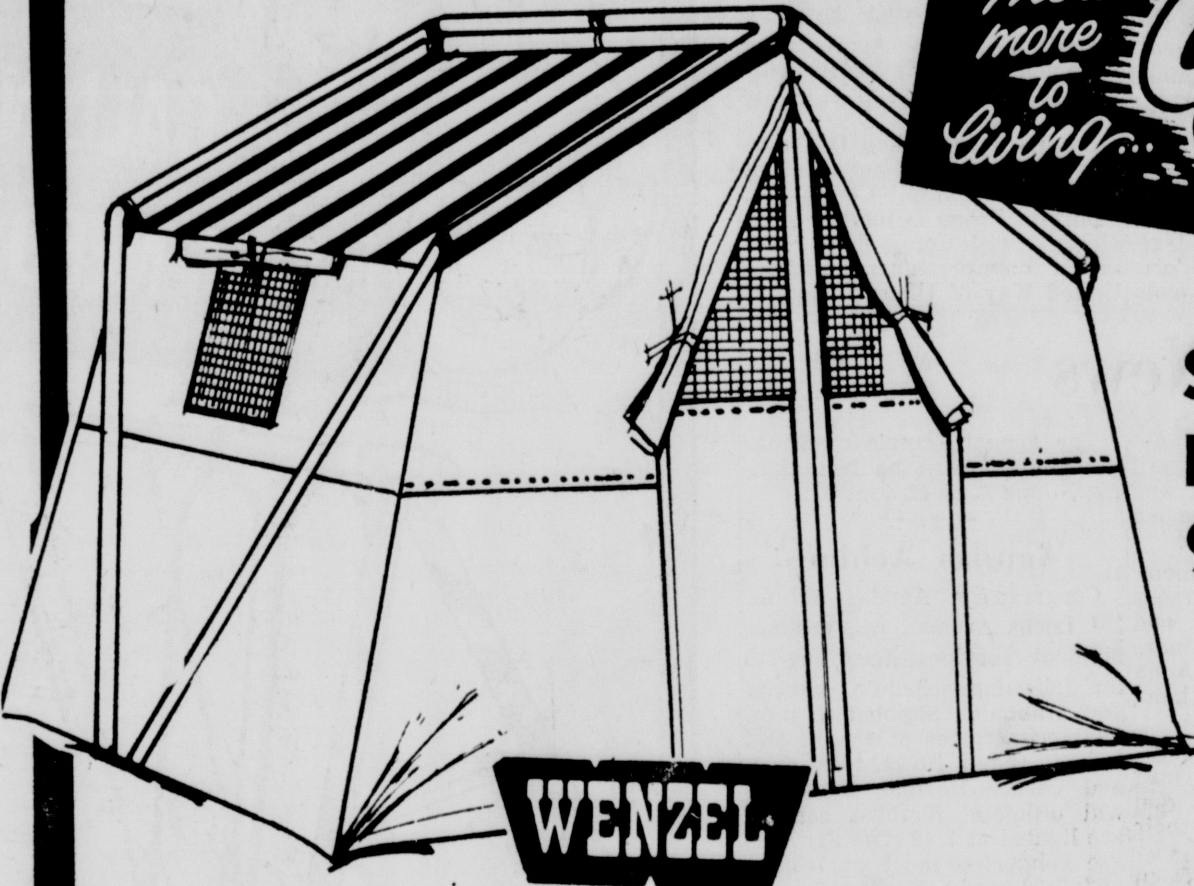

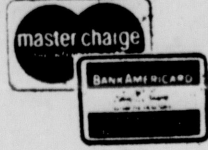

Michael Leopold

A driving instructor said, "Everyone knows that courtesy in driving is a prime accident-preventative; but surveys, unfortunately, indicate that many otherwise fine people continue to be anything but courteous behind the wheel." He continued, "Perhaps the word 'courtesy' doesn't have sufficient impact on some drivers, to register its real importance in driving. If we were forced to think of aggressive driving as criminal driving, maybe such ego-bruising term might cause offenders to become as polite in driving as they normally are in their relationships with others. It would really help reduce accidents." The aim of our column and our business is to SERVE YOU.

City Job Seekers...Poor Attendance

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Looking for new jobs but still getting paid for their old ones, several candidates for New York City offices have been failing to show up for work in the New York state legislature this year.

Assemblymen Albert Blumenthal, D-Manhattan, and Stephen Solarz, D-Brooklyn, have the worst no-show records in the lower house, each of them missing 36 of 54 days up to the end of last week.

Blumenthal is fighting an uphill battle for the Democratic nomination for mayor in the June primary. Solarz similarly faces a tough fight for the Democratic nomination for Brooklyn borough president.

In the Senate, two candidates for the Democratic nomination for comptroller, Joseph Galiber and Harrison J. Goldin, have the highest absentee records.

Although the Senate does not keep formal attendance records, roll-call votes indicate that Goldin has missed at least 28 sessions and possibly more. Galiber has missed at least 18 sessions.

Both candidates are from the Bronx. Galiber running with the support of the regular organization and county leader Patrick Cunningham, and Goldin running as a reform candidate.

State Sen. John J. Marchi of Staten Island, the Republican candidate for mayor, has had a better attendance record than the two Democrats, but does not face any primary fight and plans to start his campaign in September.

Sen. Vander L. Beatty, D-Brooklyn, missed several sessions around the beginning of May when he was involved in the community school board elections, as did Assemblymen Calvin Williams, also a Brooklyn Democrat.

Behind Blumenthal and Solarz in Assembly attendance are Anthony D'Alco, D-Manhattan, who is running for Council President, and Andrew Stein, D-Manhattan.

D'Alco has missed 26 days out of 54, and Stein, who was previously running for comptroller, has missed 24.

Assemblyman Alan Hochberg, D-Bronx, has missed 17 of 54 as he has been running for the Democratic nomination for Bronx Borough president.

But his opponent, Borough

President Robert Abrams, has complained that Hochberg is being marked present when he is not there.

Harlem Assemblyman Jesse Gray has missed 17 sessions also, making an unsuccessful effort to get enough petitions to run in the Democratic primary mayor.

Thruway Boredom Is Cited

BUFFALO (AP) — Researchers have confirmed the existence of a deadly tranquilizer suspected by many — nighttime driving on the New York State Thruway.

Cruising the four-lane highway proved so boring in a recent experiment that one out of six test drivers fell asleep at the wheel.

Fortunately, the nodding drivers had an alert partner to take control, psychologist C. Paul Cozad.

Cozad and his colleagues at Calspan Corp. here conducted tests of driving alertness in a $50,000 project sponsored by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The tests were made on a Thruway stretch from Buffalo to the Syracuse area. Thirty experienced drivers drove the round trip of 260 miles non-stop at night, while devices recorded their heart rate and brain-wave patterns during the four-hour period.

Some drivers were subjected to a tape recording of a loud truck. It was found the truck noise helped keep them alert, but added to their stress, causing them to drift within their traffic lane.

Other subjects drove with the use of an automatic speed controller. The controller proved effective in maintaining a uniform speed, but led to diminished driver alertness.

The Calspan researchers reported that five of the 30 drivers actually dozed off en route, some of them several times.

Generally, sleep struck after about three hours on the road, and in four of the five cases, when the noise tape or speed governor was being used.

Most of the sleeping motorists were jarred awake when the car's front wheel drifted onto the shoulder. Those who weren't were aided by Cozad.

Another factor tested for its effect on alertness was an engine problem, created artificially by a switch that stopped most of the car's cylinders.

When the monitor pulled the switch early in the run, drivers tended to remain aroused the rest of the way.

Forest fire, in that same amount of time, will have ravaged and burned over 200 trees.

Which is about 2 trees for every word you read.

Or by the time you finish this sentence, 118 trees.

And does the damage add up!

In a year's time that's over 420 million trees, over 4 million acres burned, and hundreds of thousands of animals left homeless.

Not to forget the ecological havoc forest fire will have wreaked where it passed.

And it's all such a senseless waste too.

Because with only a little time, most man-caused forest fires could be prevented.

An extra second to grind out a cigarette.

Another minute to pour more water on your fire, scatter the coals, cover it with dirt.

A moment to refresh yourself on fire safety.

A few extra minutes can save years of growth.

And that's time well spent on saving our forests.

Gypsy Moth Spreading Across State

Despite efforts to control the pest, the gypsy moth continues to spread westward across the state as a serious defoliator of hardwood forests.

The state Environmental Conservation Department has announced its spring spraying program to control the spread of the moth. Most scientists agree, however, that chemical control methods are, at best, stop-gap efforts.

The areas to be sprayed this spring total 14,000 acres in eight Eastern New York counties.

The current upsurge of interest in camping has been one reason for spread of the voracious insect. And many of the new infestations of the moth in new areas have been traced to eggs attached to the undercarriage of cars and camping equipment which later hatched in the owners' garage.

For that and other reasons, the highest priority for treatment this spring is given to recreation and special use areas such as campgrounds and areas where large numbers of persons use the forests for recreational purposes, according to a spokesman for the conservation department.

Second priority is given to communities where there are low densities of houses in largely woodland environments. Also being treated are areas containing high-value stands of trees such as oak, which are a favorite food of the moth during its caterpillar stage.

The moth, which does its destructive work only in the caterpillar stage, has shown up in the last two years in Tompkins, Schuyler, Tioga, Chemung and other areas with more isolated spottings.

In almost every case, the invaders have been found at or near campsites, promoting state and federal officials to renew their plea to campers in the fall to inspect the undersides of their equipment for egg clusters before they leave a camp.

At this time of the year the masses of eggs are hatching and the young hairy caterpillars with a dusky to sooty-colored body marked by five pairs of blue spots and six pairs of red, are beginning their assault on the leaves of the trees.

They will continue to eat, sometimes completely denuding a tree in a matter of days, until mid July when they spin a silky cocoon and emerge in August as mature moths.

Large areas of hardwoods throughout the northeast have been defoliated in recent summers, according to Dr. David Grimble, who heads field studies on the moth at the State University of Environmental Science and Forestry at Syracuse.

"It is a disagreeable problem for people with trees in their yards, and for outdoor recreationists, but even more importantly, defoliation slows the growth of trees, makes trees more susceptible to diseases, and can kill many of the most valuable hardwoods," Grimble said.

Two strains of bacterium, known commercially as dipel and thuricide were used last year in parts of Schoharie County as part of an effort to perfect biological control of the moth.

While the success of that experiment has not yet been finally determined, Grimble refers to chemical control methods as "stop-gap measures until a proper biological control substances can be developed."

This year the insecticide used in the Schoharie experiment, bacillus thuringiensis, has been approved for wider use, and will be applied to 2,000 acres in Suffolk County.

The other areas of Albany, Herkimer, Nassau, Suffolk, Schoharie, Sullivan, Washington and Otsego counties included in this year's control program will be sprayed with sevin, a non-persistent pesticide. One problem with sevin, however, is that it is very toxic to honey bees; therefore no area will be treated without landowner approval according to the conservation department.

The gypsy moth is native to Europe, Asia and Northern Africa. It was introduced into Massachusetts in 1869 by a French naturalist who was conducting experiments with silkworms. Some of the insects accidentally escaped and in the next 20 years increased to enormous numbers and caused defoliation of forest, shade and orchard trees.

It has now extended its range over most of New England and, in 1922, the first major invasion was recorded in New York State in Rensselaer County.

Since that time it has moved into several counties in Eastern and Central New York and is found in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and a number of other states.

Christian Women's Club to Meet

Kingston-Ulster County Christian Women's Club has increased its membership so these past two years it has had to move to larger accommodations for its luncheon-meetings. The next luncheon, therefore, has been scheduled for Monday, May 21 in the Holiday Inn at 12 o'clock.

A special feature will be a fashion show by Britts featuring clothing, hairstyles and cosmetics. Fashion commentator will be Marianne Darrow, owner of Creekside Studio of Dance and Dramatic Arts in Hurley.

Modeling will be members of the Dance and Dancercise Class and Children's Dance Class at Creekside Studio. Make-up will be done by Mary Vernick. Show theme is "Wardrobe in a Suitcase." Marianne Darrow is a former faculty member of Kathleen Peck School of Modeling in Seattle, Wash. She has had three years experience as a local radio commentator and as a professional dancer appeared with the Pittsburgh Civic Light Opera Company. Mrs. Darrow was entertainment director with the U.S. Army Special Services and was in charge of dramatic and musical productions in the United States and abroad. She has studied classical Japanese dance, European folk dancing and took additional instruction with teachers in this area, New York City and British Columbia.

Mrs. Darrow has a Master of Arts in Speech and Dramatic Arts from Columbia University and a pre-doctorate associate at the University of Washington Speech and Hearing Clinic. She is a member of the Professional Dance Teachers Association.

Donald Fellows of Saugerties will be baritone soloist for the luncheon. He is editor of the Post Star and director of the Catskill Glee Club since 1960. A director of his church choir for 40 years, he has appeared many times in the area as a soloist and member of male quartets. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Richard Braen of Woodstock. Special background music will be supplied by Mrs. David Cartmell of Saugerties.

Guest speaker for the afternoon will be Marion Piester of Columbia County, N.Y.

Mrs. Piester has three teenage daughters, and is active in the P-T-A and Girl Scouts. She is chairman of a student exchange program and her husband is Extension Service Agent for Columbia County. Mrs. Piester has worked with girls in the New York Training School for Girls in Hudson for more than 15 years.

It has been announced a nursery will be provided at the Inn for a nominal fee. Mothers should provide a sack lunch and soft toy for each child. A reservation must be made for each child. Reservations for the luncheon and nursery should be made with Mrs. John Fredricks of Kingston or Mrs. Ray Newton of Kalina Drive, Saugerties.

ON THE COMMITTEE for the upcoming luncheon to be given by Kingston-Ulster County Christian Women's Club will be (L-R) Mrs. John Skinner, advisor; Mrs. Earl Wheeler, chairman; Mrs. Richard Smith, Mrs. Ray Newton, advisors. Because of the rapid growth of club membership, the luncheon has been moved to larger quarters. The group will be meeting at 12 o'clock in the Holiday Inn. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Mother Smokes About Kids

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How right you are! No one should drop in on their married children unannounced. They might be smoking grass there!

I learned the hard way. If someone stole my purse, I'd report it to the police. But when I'm present when they're smoking marijuana in their own homes, I just keep my mouth shut, come home, and air out my clothes and hope I never have to smell it again.

I know what I am going to put in their Christmas stockings next year. A hacksaw for her, and a file for him.

I've invited my daughter, her husband, and several of their friends over for dinner next week, and if those kids light up in my home I'll call the sheriff. (I wonder if I should warn them in advance? Or do you suppose after four years of college they are sufficiently educated to know that one doesn't break the law in the home of the host?)

I never thought I'd send a

letter I couldn't sign, but here's one. Aren't we a bunch of lovely law abiding Christian parents? Thanks for being a good ear. I had to tell someone or explode.

FRUSTRATED MOTHER
DEAR FRUSTRATED: Why the frustration? Just tell your kids you don't want them lighting up in your home, and if you are present when they light up elsewhere, absent yourself.

DEAR ABBY: My problem has no solution, unless this is printed and the "culprit" just happens to see it and recognize herself as the singer.

My sister, whom I love dearly, has been a widow for several years, and since she is a very congenial person my husband and I have invited her along on our motor trip vacation. We love music and our automobile is equipped with stereo and our favorite cassettes.

Now comes the problem: My sister, who has no singing voice at all, must accompany every song she hears. She does this in shrill, off-key voice, four to six beats ahead (or behind) and sometimes she "harmonizes."

My husband and I intend to spend three months touring Mexico and my husband has given me an ultimatum: Tell Sis to keep her mouth shut, or the trip is off.

Any ideas? LOVING SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Tell Sis that your husband, the music-lover, is looking forward to enjoying the music on the trip, and you'd appreciate her quiet cooperation.

Swiss Specialty Teamed With Tuna

Home cooking in Switzerland has a quality that is not always found in the cuisine of its well-known hotels and restaurants. Based on the hearty fare of Alpine peasants and villagers, it makes much of vegetables and the fresh fish of mountain lakes and streams, while it eschews meat to a large degree. Beef and veal have always been expensive for the average householder — and "plain" meals without meat are a daily pattern.

Today, in this country, the skyrocketing prices of meat products are causing meal-makers to look to other foods for main-dish substance. A staunch favorite is canned tuna in vegetable oil.

One of the most famous of Swiss specialties is Roesti:

crusty, sauteed potatoes cooked pancake style. It's a popular evening dish, served with coffee or milk. It's an old Swiss custom to cover vegetables, during preparation, with different "solid" foods as a frugal way to give them heartier nourishment. With this in mind, tuna has been added to a traditional Roesti and the result is a superb main dish for any time of day, from breakfast through late supper.

Swiss regional cuisine has a number of other homey potato treats, among them, Zug's Potato Cake, named for a picturesque town not far from Lucerne. The recipe calls for seasoned, mashed potatoes topped with a mixture of eggs, light cream and grated Gruyere cheese. You can imagine how mouth watering a dish this is with the addition of tuna! Children, especially, should go for its "easy" texture and honest-to-goodness tastiness.

Tuna Roesti

Three cups shredded, sliced, or chopped cooked potatoes

One-quarter cup chopped onion

Two cans (six and one-half or seven ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil

One-half teaspoon salt

One cup grated Gruyere cheese

One-quarter cup butter or margarine

In large bowl mix potatoes, onion, tuna, salt and cheese.

In large skillet melt butter.

Add potato-tuna mixture and press firmly over bottom of pan. Cook over medium heat

Tuna-Potato Cake

Four cups mashed potatoes (one and one-half pounds)

One teaspoon salt

One-quarter teaspoon pepper

One-quarter cup milk

One tablespoon butter or margarine

Two cans (six and one-half or seven ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil

Two eggs

One cup light cream

Three cups grated Gruyere cheese

Butter a 2-quart casserole dish. Mash potatoes with salt, pepper, milk and butter. Add tuna and mix well. Spoon mixture into 2-quart casserole and flatten with a spatula. Beat eggs with cream and stir in cheese. Pour over potatoes. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven for 25 minutes. Serve with crisp fried onion rings.

YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

Delicious Old Colonial Cake

Dating back to colonial days this simply delicious and deliciously simple applesauce cake has been a favorite ever since. In the old days it was considered quite good enough to serve plain and unadorned, but we thought it would be fun to dress it up a little with a topping of white frosting and a lacy "cobweb" of melted unsweetened chocolate dribbled from the tip of a teaspoon.

Use any favorite white frosting — your own recipe, a frosting mix or a ready-to-spread canned frosting. Then make the chocolate "cobweb", stand back and admire your handiwork!

By the way, the applesauce in the cake keeps it moist and "servable" for a longer time than usual — if any is left that is! And today it's easier to include the applesauce. It's always available at nearby food stores, packed in convenient cans and jars, ready to serve "as is" or use in a favorite recipe.

Marblehead Applesauce Cake

One-half cup shortening

One cup sugar

One egg

One cup canned applesauce

One and three-quarter cups sifted all purpose flour

One and one-half teaspoons cinnamon

One teaspoon allspice

One teaspoon nutmeg

One-quarter teaspoon cloves

One-half teaspoon salt

One teaspoon baking soda

Cream shortening to consistency of mayonnaise; add sugar gradually, while creaming. Add egg; beat well.

Add applesauce. Mix and sift flour, spices, salt and baking soda; add. Mix well. Bake in greased and floured eight inch square cake pan at 350 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST -

(c) 1973 Emily Post Institute, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Post:

Have been enjoying your column for some time.

My "pet peeve" matches that of one of your readers on drop-in visitors. With me, it happened shortly after I had moved here and was still trying to get unpacked, etc. The drop-ins were old friends

(?) who knew how much I had to handle by myself as a recent widow. Since they couldn't offer any physical help to me before, during or after my move, a suggestion was made that they take me out to dinner instead. Well,

I am still waiting to have that date kept after locating here in 1971! However, I fear the friendship has not bloomed very much since, and I don't intend that it shall. With friends like that, who needs enemies? The excuses and alibis given by said friends (?) for not keeping the dinner date would fill a book!

Mrs. J. Austin

All of you who follow my column regularly know that

I disapprove — in nine out of ten cases — of drop-in visitors. This writer's so-called friends (?) added insult to injury by failing to keep their promise of something more.

Have you been guilty of "using" anyone in this way?

I hope not!

Dear Mrs. Post:

I have a friend who has been a widow for eight years and is being married in June. She plans a quiet church wedding. She does not want to walk up the aisle but instead wishes to walk out through the rectory with her groom. We wanted to give her a shower in a garden setting — tables set in the yard and buffet supper. We were told we should not give a shower for a person who had been married before. Is this so?

DOROTHY GIBSON

Dear Mrs. Gibson:

You may give a shower for your friend, and your plans sound lovely. Her plans for a quiet ceremony are also quite correct and appropriate for the circumstances.

Dear Mrs. Post:

When a close relative dies and people come to pay their respects at a funeral home, some may say, "You have my sympathy" or something on that order. What must the bereaved person say to be courteous, "Thanks," or what is proper?

Mrs. Sanfield

Dear Mrs. Sanfield:

The person who is bereaved need say nothing other than

"Thank you." If he (or she) wishes to say more, he may add, "You're very kind," or

"It helps to know our friends are with us," or "I appreciate your coming."

"So You're Planning to Give a Shower!" This booklet tells you everything you need to know for a bridal shower, a welcome party for a new neighbor, the local minister or anyone else. To get a copy, send thirty-five cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Daily Freeman.

Helpful Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE

HOW EGGSPLICIT CAN YOU BE?

Dear Heloise:

I like to have a soft-boiled egg for breakfast, but have no time to make sure the egg is done precisely as I like it.

I hit upon the idea of putting a song on my stereo with the same playing time as I like my egg.

Now I have not only an egg done to perfection but a favorite song to fully wake me up in the morning.

BARB HEGLER

Dear Heloise:

Due to my very dry skin, I must use heavy-duty rubber gloves and cotton cosmetic gloves under the rubber gloves.

I searched for a way to keep the rubber gloves open to dry inside where perspiration gathers and finally found I could use cans cut open at both ends and cleaned.

When placed inside the top part of the glove, it would hold the glove open to dry and stay fresher smelling.

MRS. CLARA EASLEY

Dear Heloise:

Do you know how to rescue an otherwise lost morning?

I was making ice cream and, ready for the vanilla, I reached to a high shelf for a lovely new large bottle. (Isn't that the way to save money, buy the biggest one?)

It got away from me, and broke on the tile counter below. The precious vanilla flowed in all directions!

I grabbed several paper towels, folded them, and mopped. Then I put one vanilla-wet "sponge" on each of several cottage cheese box lids and slipped them under the couches and chairs in the living room. The rest I rubbed into my hair.

Now my house and I smell just beautiful.

MARY V. LOUGHMAN

There's no doubt about it, Mary, you've got "the sweetest deal in town."

Junior Banquet Slated

KINGSTON
Junior Achievement of Greater Kingston will culminate a year of activity with a Future Unlimited Banquet at the Williams Lake Hotel on Monday, June 4, beginning at 6:45 p.m.

The dinner serves as an opportunity to recognize and honor the achievers and advisors who participated in JA projects during the year, according to Robert E. Deitrick, president of the board of directors.

Four mini-corporations, comprised of 44 young adults, were formed, operated, and were liquidated during the 1972-73 year. Each company elected officers, sold stock for capital, manufactured and sold products or operated as a service company, and paid dividends to stockholders if the company showed a profit.

Each Junior Achievement company was sponsored by an area business, including IBM Corporation, Rotron Inc., Kingston Knitting Mills, and Kingston Cablevision. Each sponsor furnished adult advisors to assist the achievers in their business ventures.

Highlighting the activities will be the presentation of 11 Achiever Awards. Roger M. Duke, banquet chairman, said that awards will be presented to the Junior Achievement Company of the Year, the Annual Report winner, and best achiever, as well as the top president, vice president of manufacturing, vice president of sales, secretary, and treasurer.

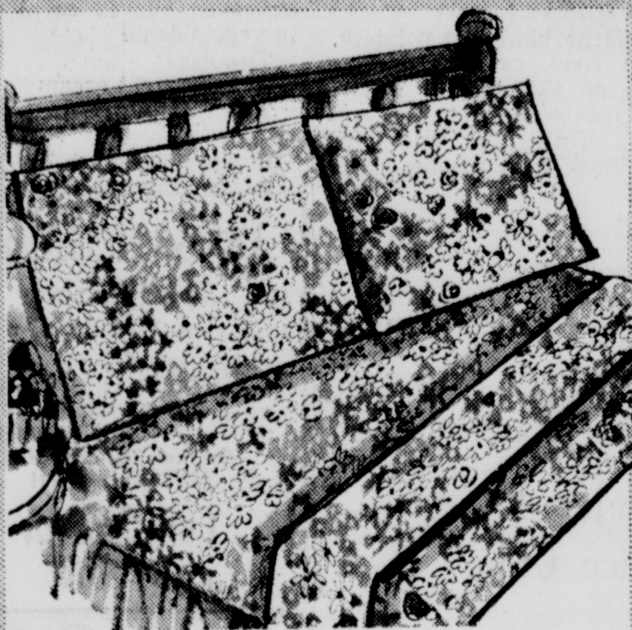

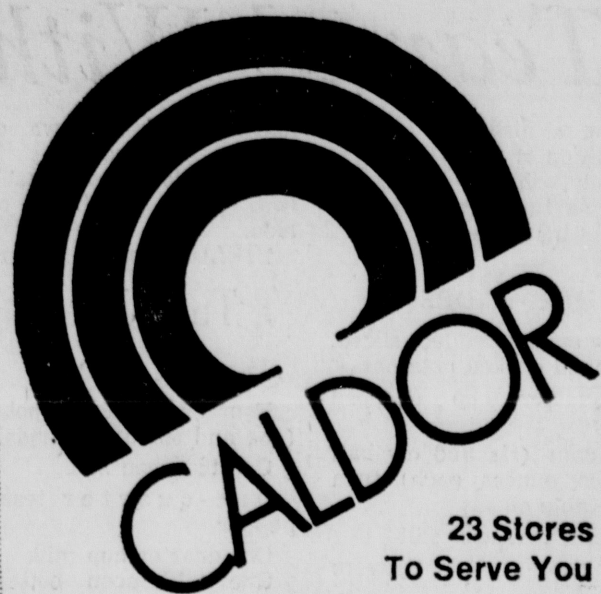

Awards will also be made to two outstanding achievers who will be sent to the National Junior Achievement Conference at the University of Indiana in July. The final presentation will be made for the Junior Achievement scholarship, given to the most outstanding achiever of the year.

Guest speaker will be George H. Pash, manager of safety and training at the New York State Electric and Gas Corp. of Binghamton.

Ozark Has Cure For Bucs

Philadelphia Manager Danny Ozark has a cure for what's ailing the Pittsburgh Pirates—a good swift kick in the pants.

Ozark's Phils scored four times in the first inning, then rode the five-hit pitching of Wayne Twitchell to a 5-2 victory over the Pirates Wednesday night.

It was Pittsburgh's seventh loss in its last eight games, and lowered the Bucs' season record to 13-16.

"When you're in a slump like they are, you just have to kick yourself in the pants a little," Ozark said. "But they're still the National League East champions, and you can't consider them a dead ball club."

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis beat the Chicago Cubs 3-1 in an afternoon game while at night, Atlanta beat Houston 5-2 in 11 innings, the New York Mets defeated Montreal 8-3, Cincinnati outlasted Los Angeles 8-6 in 11 innings and San Diego beat San Francisco 4-1.

A throwing error charged to Pittsburgh right fielder Manny Sanguillen opened the gates for Philadelphia in the first inning.

The Phils loaded the bases on an error by Pirate second baseman Dave Cash, a single by Del Unser and a walk. All three runners scored when Greg Luzinski singled to right and Sanguillen's throw to the infield skipped all the way into the Phils' dugout.

"It was the infield's fault more than Sanguillen's," explained Pittsburgh Manager Bill Virdon, noting that Sanguillen made the right play in throwing to second base to hold Luzinski at first.

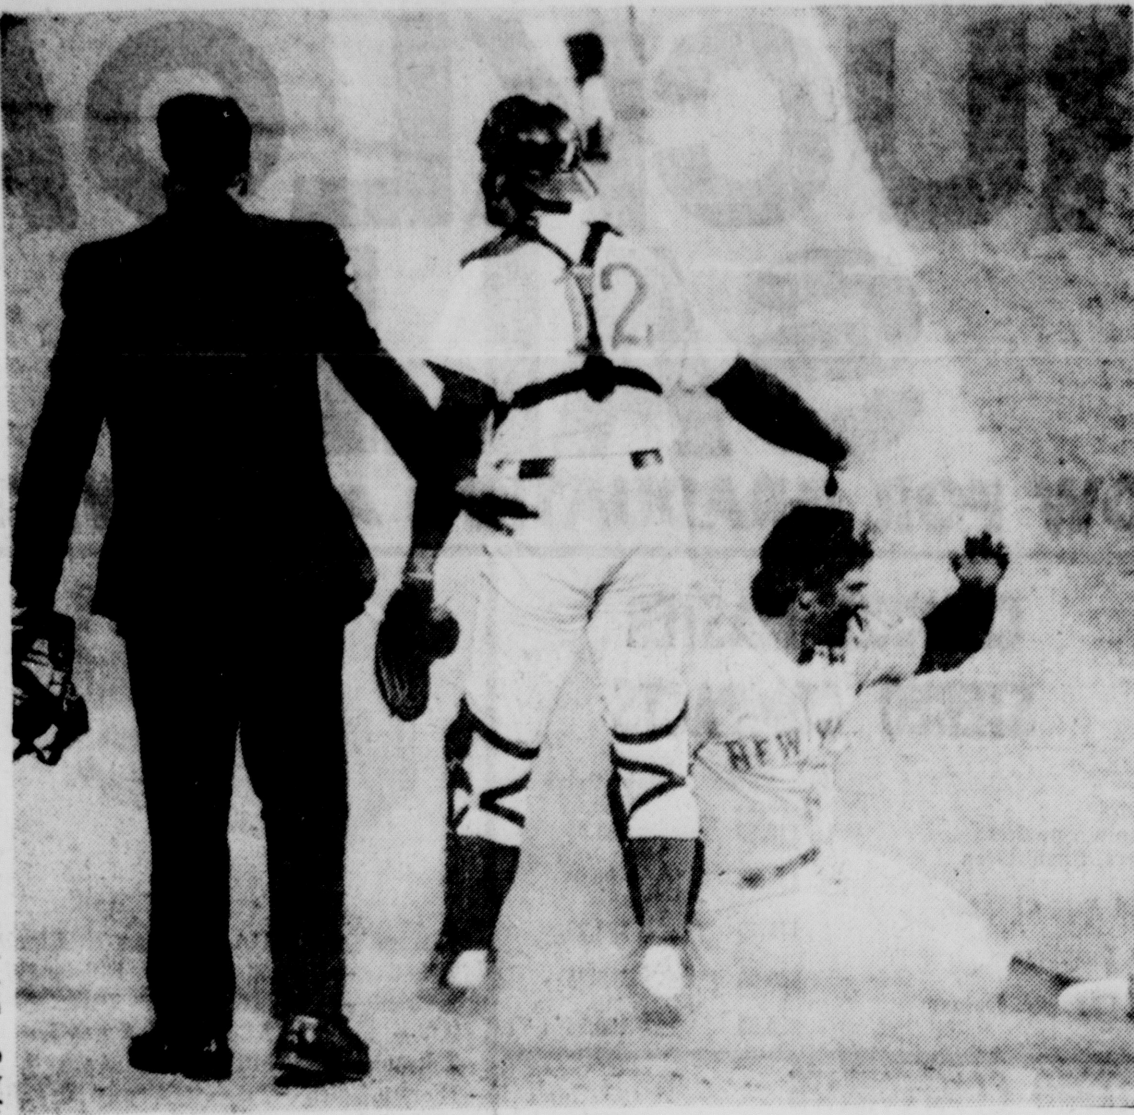

"There's always supposed to be someone on the bag, either the second baseman or the shortstop," Virdon said.

Twitchell kept the Bucs in check until the ninth, when reliever Mac Scarce came in to get the last two outs.

Mike Tyson's two-run triple was the big blow as the Cardinals halted the Cubs' seven-game winning streak, even though Chicago's Glenn Beckert had two singles to raise his consecutive-game hitting streak to 24.

Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning drove in the first of three Atlanta runs which broke a 2-2 tie. Atlanta's Hank Aaron had earlier hit his 11th homer of the season, No. 684 lifetime, putting him exactly 30 back of Babe Ruth's magic mark of 714.

Dodger Joe Ferguson, having what he described as "my best night in the majors," collected four hits in five times at bat against the Reds, including a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the 11th inning.

Gosger's Play Keys Mets' 8-3 Victory

MONTREAL (AP) — Jim Gosger, a former Montreal Expo currently with the New York Mets on a temporary basis, was the difference Wednesday night as the Mets beat Montreal 8-3 in a National League baseball game.

"Gosger kept us ahead in the fourth when he made that catch in center field," said Mets Manager Yogi Berra.

"They had two on with none out, and if the ball drops, they've got two runs in with a man on second or third."

"Without that catch it would probably have been a very different ball game," Berra added.

The play occurred with New York leading 4-0 in the fourth. After Ken Singleton walked and Mike Jorgensen blooped a single to center, John Boccabella lined a hard drive deep into right center.

Gosger, playing Boccabella to left center, ran it down and made a lunging catch.

"I didn't think I had a chance," Gosger said.

"I saw Rusty (Staub) didn't have too much of a chance either so I kept running and just did make the ball."

The Mets rapped Montreal starter Mike Torrez for seven hits in the third and fourth innings, scoring twice in each inning.

Bud Harrelson, who stroked three singles in the game, was instrumental in both rallies.

He led off the third with his first hit, and two outs later moved to third on Ken Boswell's double to right.

Theodore then drove in both runs with a single to left.

Gosger led off the fourth with a single but was forced at second by Duffy Dyer. However, Harrelson stroked his second hit and both runners moved up an extra base when Ron Woods booted the ball for an error.

Dyer later scored on pitcher Harry Parker's squeeze bunt and Harrelson crossed the plate on Wayne Garrett's two-base hit.

New York injuries brought Gosger up from the Mets' Class AAA team at Tidewater in the International League two weeks ago and he has been playing regularly since.

"I came up after John Milner was hurt and I've been playing center since Willie Mays was placed on the disabled list," he said.

"They told me it would be on a day-to-day basis so I'm trying my hardest to make it difficult for them to send me back down. I want to stay up here real bad."

Montreal chipped away at the New York lead, scoring one on Bob Bailey's fourth-inning sacrifice fly, again on Hal Breedon's second pinch-homer of the year in the seventh, and chased Parker with their third run in the eighth. Tug McGraw came in and saved Parker's fourth straight victory.

The Mets wrapped up the victory with four runs in the ninth, two on a single by Staub.

Munson's Relaxed

Thurman Sparks Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — The fire has gone out of Thurman Munson's manner and turned up in his bat.

"I'm relaxed, that's all," said Munson, grinning through his Fu Manchu mustache after powering the New York Yankees to an 11-4 romp over the Milwaukee Brewers Wednesday night.

Munson wasn't always the most relaxed guy on the Yankees. Far from it.

"I used to get uptight all the time," he admitted. "Now, I try not to let things bother me."

The perfect example came against the Brewers. Munson had gone 0-for-4 and struck out three times against Detroit's Joe Coleman in the Yankees' last game—a real up tight performance.

"I used to worry about games like that," he said. "Now I forget about them."

Erasing the memory of Coleman from his mind, Munson thumped a single, double and home run against Milwaukee, scoring one run and driving in four.

Munson's double came in a six-run New York uprising that broke the game open in the sixth inning. It drove in two runs, and an inning later, he delivered two more with his third homer of the year.

Bobby Murcer had two singles in the big inning, starting the burst by beating out an infield roller and finishing it with a two-run hit. That inning gave reliever Sparky Lyle a 9-1 lead, more than enough cushion for his fourth save of the season.

Lyle was in the game because Munson didn't like the way Steve Kline, the Yankee starter, was throwing. Kline came up with a tender elbow while warming up before the game.

"I tried to work it out, but it never came out," said Kline. Munson discovered the problem in the second inning when he noticed Kline shortening up on his delivery.

"I told him I wouldn't say anything as long as he threw all right," said Munson. "He didn't want me to tell. He doesn't like to come out."

In the sixth, Pedro Garcia reached Kline for a home run and with one out, Don Money singled and motioned for Manager Ralph Houk. "He was shortening up," said the catcher.

Exit Kline, enter Lyle.

"You never want those kind of games to end," said Munson. "There aren't enough like that."

If he sounds like a man having a good time, that's because he is doing just that.

"I'm enjoying myself more," said Munson, smiling.

OUT!—Ollie Brown (L) of the Brewers and Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles eye umpire Jerry Neudecker as he calls Brown out at third in the third inning of Wednesday's game at Yankee Stadium. Brown was picked off the base on a throw from catcher Thurman Munson to Nettles. Yankees beat Milwaukee, 11-4. (UPI)

Oliva Takes Advantage of DH

By United Press International
Tony Oliva, the Minnesota Twins' three-time batting champion, is one designated hitter who doesn't see the American League rule as a means to hang on in the majors a few more seasons.

Instead, Oliva sees it as a way to return to stardom and even to win his fourth batting crown.

"I'm feeling much better every day," says Oliva, who missed all but 10 games of the 1972 season with an ailing right knee from which 100 cartilageous fragments were removed in an operation. "I won't start tomorrow or next week but I can see the day when I'll be back in the starting lineup. I'm running better and I'm even sliding."

The 31-year old native of Cuba has been used exclusively as a designated hitter this season and has compiled a .278 average with 14 runs batted in.

to show for 26 games. He came through with a two-run tie-breaking double off Terry Forster Wednesday night to lead the Twins to an 8-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox and square their season record at 15-15.

"This game is too much fun for me to sit on the bench all season except for my hitting appearances," adds Oliva.

"I've got to get back in the lineup to take the batting championship away from Rod Carew, my roommate."

New York beat Milwaukee 11-4, California downed Oakland 7-2, Texas nipped Kansas City 2-1 and Detroit scored a 6-5 victory over Boston in 10 innings in the other AL games. Baltimore and Cleveland were not scheduled.

Oliva's double snapped a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning and was followed by Bobby Darwin's run-scoring single which completed a four-run rally.

Danny Thompson hit a two-run double stretching his hitting streak to 15 games for the Twins while Bill Melton and Dick Allen each hit his seventh homer of the season for the White Sox.

Clyde Wright, an 18-game winner last season, pitched a six-hitter for his first win this year and Jim Spencer hit a two-run homer for the Angels. The Angels routed John Odum, now 1-6, with three runs on four hits in the fifth. Sal Bando homered for the A's. It was the fifth straight win for the Angels.

Larry Bittner's single with two out in the ninth inning drove in the winning run for the Rangers, who filled the bases on a single by Toby Harrah and walks to Alex Johnson and Rico Cartwright. The blow handed Kansas City's Paul Splittorff his second loss against six victories.

The Tigers pulled out their victory over the Red Sox on Mickey Stanley's sacrifice fly with the bases filled and one out in the 10th. The Red Sox connected for the Red Sox.

NL Eyeing Fans' Reaction

BOSTON (UPI) — Will the National League adopt the designated hitter rule?

Yes, says Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, if American League fans show they like it.

"That's the important factor in whether the National League will adopt the rule—the reaction of the fans," Kuhn told a news conference Wednesday.

"It would depend on whether they like it, and so far I think they do."

Kuhn indicated he was somewhat disappointed the experiment with the designated hitter wasn't taken up by both leagues this year. But he said he saw no chance that the American League would be able to use it for home games in World Series competition.

"I pressed very much for the experiment to take place without committing myself to whether it would work or not," the commissioner told a news conference.

"So far it certainly has been a very interesting experiment," Kuhn said.

added to all of the offensive categories.

Kuhn, who was here to address the 100 Club's annual dinner, also touched on the legalization of sports gambling and possible major league expansion.

"I would hope that legalized gambling doesn't become a reality," he said, referring to bills currently before the Massachusetts Legislature that would allow betting on baseball and other sports.

"But even if it is legalized, that doesn't mean a person can't by contract give up the right to do something that is legal."

Kuhn said Major League Rule 21 currently prohibits team personnel from betting on baseball and "those regulations might very well be written into a contract."

On expansion, the commissioner said he believed it was "inevitable, but I don't see it very soon."

He also said he felt the movement of franchises from one city to another hasn't been good for baseball. I don't say you can't have them, but I hope we will reach a point very soon where we will have stability."

Astros' GM Is Fined For Criticizing Umps

HOUSTON (AP) — Spec Richardson, general manager of the Houston Astros, says he's not surprised that he was fined $300 for ordering a message on the Astrodome scoreboard which criticized two umpires.

The words for umpires Bruce Froemming and Augie Donatelli were posted during Houston's 4-1 loss to Atlanta Tuesday night following a disputed double play in the ninth inning.

Richardson received a telegram Wednesday from National League President Charles Feeney informing him of the fine.

The message ordered flashed on the scoreboard by Richardson said: "Manager Leo Durocher has announced the game is being played under protest. Umpires Froemming and Donatelli have blown decisions two of the last three days."

LEE TREVINO

Trevino Feels Like a Million

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Lee Trevino says he feels like a million dollars.

And he's barely a chip shot away from his first golfing million on the water-studded, 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course, the merry Mexican's personal money reserve for the past two years.

Trevino teed off as the heavy favorite today in quest of his third consecutive victory in the $175,000 Memphis Classic Tournament with most of the tour's big guns elsewhere.

Among those challenging Trevino are three-time former Memphis winner Dave Hill, Johnny Miller, Doug Sanders, J. C. Snead, Lou Graham and Jim Jamieson.

Riggs Can Play On Tour, if ...

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — It came down from headquarters today—Virginia Slims is perfectly willing to let Bobby Riggs play on the ladies' tennis circuit but there are specifications.

"We'd be very happy to have him," said Stella Lachowicz, the tour's publicity director, "but he must pass the physical and wear a dress."

"In fact, we are perfectly willing to lend him our official designer, Teddy Tintling of London, to prepare a suitable outfit."

Miss Lachowicz was asked if a saliva test—suggested by Bobby himself—would be sufficient for qualification purposes.

"I'm afraid not," Stella replied icily. "I think the physical would have to be a bit more thorough than that."

After beating Margaret Court, leading money winner on the Virginia Slims circuit, so decisively in their Battle of the Sexes last Sunday at Ramona, Calif., Riggs announced he hoped to enter the ladies' tournament at Newport, R. I., in mid-August.

"Why not?" said Bobby, 55-year-old former world men's champion and now king of the sports hustlers. "After all, there is no sex after 55. All senior players over 55 should be permitted to play in the ladies' events."

In beating Margaret, a 5-foot-9 Australian athlete who plays with the power of a man, Riggs used nothing but patteycafe stuff—slices, lobs and dink shots.

"Women would be smart if they quit trying to play like men—with that big serve and volley stuff," Riggs said. "They ought to play like women—like me."

James Van Alen, the Newport socialite and founder of the VASSIS scoring system, did not react favorably to Riggs' suggestion, but the girls at the national headquarters of Philip Morris on Park Avenue here, thought it was hilarious. "Bobby would look cute in one of Tintling's special numbers, a blouse and ballerina skirt," said Miss Lachowicz.

Tintling is the man who shocked staid Wimbledon by putting lace panties on Gussie Moran in 1949. He is the Virginia Slims' official couturier.

Ashe, Drysdale Only Two Left

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Only two seeded players remained today after two rounds of the $150,000 Alan King-Caesar's Palace Tennis Classic that saw a rash of upsets.

Arthur Ashe, seeded fifth, and seventh-seeded Cliff Drysdale were the only rated players left in competition.

The top two seeds, Stan Smith and Rod Laver, were eliminated in the first round Tuesday. Then on Wednesday third-seeded Ken Rosewall, fourth-seeded and defending champion John Newcombe were knocked out.

In addition, sixth-seeded Marty Riessen and the eighth-ranked Roy Emerson were also ousted.

Milan Captures European Cup

SALONIKA, Greece (UPI) — A.C. Milan left Greece today with the European Cup Winners' Cup in its grasp and the boos of 50,000 Greek soccer fans in their ears.

The Italians defeated England's Leeds United 1-0 Wednesday night to win the cup for the second time in six years. But their victory left a sour taste after they had been booed from the National Stadium by the once non-partisan Greek fans, angered not only by Milan's tactics but also by the referee, Christos Michas.

In one of the roughest European finals on record, Milan's Riccardo Sogliano and English international Norman Hunter were sent off two minutes from the end for fighting. It was the ugly climax

National LL Takes Action Against Ypsilanti

YPSILANTI, Mich. (UPI) — The Ypsilanti Chapter of Little League has been ordered by the National Little League headquarters to remove league patches from all players' uniforms because a 12-year-old girl is on one of the teams.

William Anhut, a Ypsilanti attorney and president of the chapter, said Wednesday he received the letter from the National Little League Charter Committee Tuesday, notifying him that the Ypsilanti Chapter was in violation of the "no girls" rule and was not entitled to be a member of the Little League.

"I sent a letter to the Little League headquarters in Williamsport, Pa., asking for a clarification of the letter," Anhut said. "I've also asked for an Executive Committee review of the Charter Committee action."

The letter resulted from a determination by the Ypsilanti Chapter to allow 12-year-old Carolyn King to play center field for the Orioles, one of eight teams in the chapter.

Regulation 4, paragraph 1 of the National Little League Charter pointedly states: "Girls are not eligible."

"I want to find out definitely whether we're revoked or what the situation is," Anhut said. "We definitely plan to go into court to fight this thing if we don't get a satisfactory ruling from the executive committee."

Carolyn, called an "exceptional player" by Ypsilanti league officials, said she tried out for the team with her mother "just for the fun of it."

She made the team, and enjoyed the support of the 11- and 12-year-old boys within the league until the national headquarters warned local officials their charter could be revoked or allowing her on the team.

Ypsilanti league officials decided last week not to jeopardize the chances of other players, however, and voted not to allow Carolyn to play.

A directive last Wednesday by Ypsilanti City Manager Peter Caputo changed all that, however, when Caputo issued a memo barring the city's Little League from using the community's park facilities unless the discriminatory practice was stopped.

"Now I'm sort of pressured because my teammates say, 'C'mon, Carolyn, get a hit,'" said Carolyn Wednesday night after her team suffered a 10-0 defeat. "So I try too hard. I really think I've been getting a lot of garbage balls. Sometimes I feel like I have to swing at them just to get a hit."

"I guess it would have happened to any girl in this situation. I guess it just had to happen to me. The kids from the other dugouts usually yell at me. I feel more calm at the plate now, but there's still a lot of pressure. I think it'll be better if we take it to court. Then maybe we'll change the rules completely about girls."

"I hope women's lib people don't have to go through half of what I'm going through. But at least I have some support. I get three or four letters a day from all over the country. A few are from men but none so far have been from boys."

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

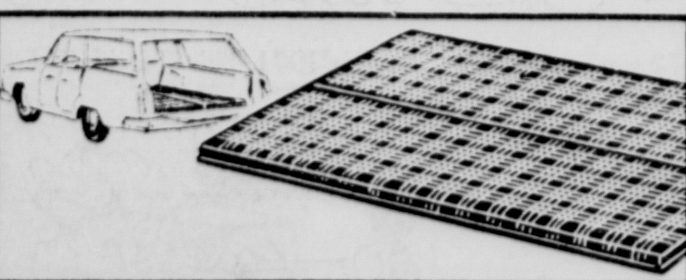

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

| Tread Wear Expectancy | Tread Wear Allowance |
|-----------------------|---------------------------|
| 42,000 miles | Pro-rated on 40,000 miles |
| 45 month | $13.00 |
| 40 month | 10.00 |
| 39 month | 8.00 |
| 36 month | 6.00 |
| 33 month | 5.00 |
| 30 month | 4.00 |
| 24 month | 3.00 |
| 18 month | 2.00 |

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.

Gilmore Named In Paternity Suit

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels, the leading rebounder and shot-blocker in the American Basketball Association last season, has been named the defendant in a $525,000 paternity suit filed by a University of Louisville coed.

Belinda Carmen Gill charged in her suit, filed Tuesday in Jefferson County Circuit Court, that she was "deceived and misled" by Gilmore's "agents, servants or employees" into believing he would provide medical care and support her after she became pregnant.

The suit seeks $525,000 in compensatory and punitive damages from the 7-foot-2 Colonels star, who signed a pro contract in 1971 for a sum estimated in excess of $2 million.

Hambletonian: Too Many Views

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A lot of people including Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, would like to see harness racing's premier event — the Hambletonian — come to New York in 1975. But there is some controversy as to where it would be staged if the state did get the nod.

Saratoga Harness Inc. publicized its own effort to get the event by throwing a luncheon Wednesday for Albany-area legislators and parading a trotter named Straight Shot around the state Capitol grounds.

At present, the prestigious race for 3-year-old trotters is held at DuQuoin State Fairgrounds in Illinois, but Saratoga Harness plans to make a formal bid to the Hambletonian Society later this summer.

A contract for the race will be awarded late in the year and would be effective with the 1975 running of the event and for a period of three to five years.

Ernest B. Morris, president and general manager of Saratoga Harness Inc., urged lawmakers to work for legislative support of the Saratoga Springs bid.

Sawyer Softies Open

SAUGERTIES 10 runs. The Saugerties Softball League opened its 14th and biggest season Monday with two 12-2 "stopper" games, one in the "A" division — Glasco A.C. over Buono-McConekey Funeral Home — the other in the "B" loop Orville & Arlene's over Ted's Exxon.

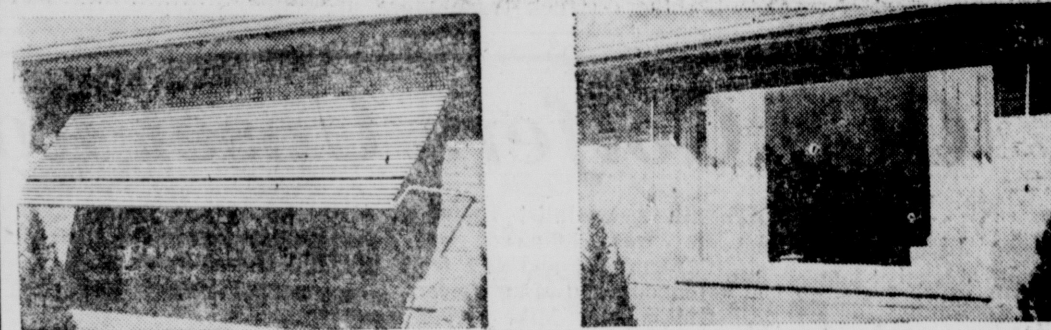

Glasco exploded for seven runs in the second and four in the fourth to take care of the Funeral Home in four innings. The "stopper" rule calls for termination of a game once a team goes ahead by at least team divisions this year with four games scheduled on Sundays and one doubleheader every night Monday through Thursday. The league operates under the auspices of the Saugerties Athletic Association.

The linescores:
Glasco A.C. 070 5-12 13
Buono-McConekey 200 0-2 4
Benny Molina and Steve Pasqua, Mike Dodig and Vince Ferraro.
Orville-Arlene's 200 37-12 13
Ted's Exxon 200 0x-2 4
Mouse Wolven and Hank Sommers, Maurice Hinchey and Don O'Connor.

KHS Nine Checks Newburgh, 9-4

KINGSTON Kingston High School rally that postponed Saugerties' meeting with John Jay. In games that carried the Maroons past Newburgh, 9-4 in a non-league contest.

Walt Debrosky broke open a tie game in the last inning here Wednesday, lashing a two-run single to highlight a five-run

Roosevelt topped Lourdes, 4-2, he fell behind after the Goldbacks pushed three runs across in the first inning. Two walks, an error and the only two hits Newburgh got all day scored three, and errors put Newburgh up 4-2 after two.

Dave Decker retired the side runs and stranded plenty of Maroons on the basepaths.

In the seventh he couldn't get a man out. First he hit Bob Marz with a pitch. Then he walked Joe Fay. A double steal put them in position for Debrosky who came through with the hit.

Fescue passed Chuck Bouton and Dan Brown to load the bases before Kevin Lahey came on in relief. He faced Rocky Secreto and wished he hadn't as the KHS third baseman drilled his fourth hit of the day to chase home two more runs. Another RBI single by John Carter ended the scoring.

Marz pitched the first six and got the win for Kingston, but

Maroons Zip Sawyers For the 'Big One' 5-0

SAUGERTIES Hunter of Kingston. "We've had our ups and downs this season but we put it all together today."

Hunter noted that, "in four previous matches, we had to win doubles points to win matches and stay undefeated. The win, incidentally, was the ninth straight for Kingston and Saugerties' first loss after eight straight wins."

Coach Hunter was particularly impressed by the performance of Rich Rumble who moved into the No. 1 singles spot for Saugerties this season. "He's a very fine young player," commented Hunter, "and I predict that next season he will be the best high school player in the Mid-Hudson area."

In addition to his tennis talents, Rumble of course, is a nationally-ranked table tennis player.

Both teams were undefeated going into this special confrontation and the Kingston win left the Maroons in sole possession of first place in the Dutchess County Scholastic League.

All three Kingston singles winners — Phil Bosch, Tom Lonergan and Dan Galyon — trailed in the early going. Rich Rumble, Saugerties' No. 1 ace, led Bosch 4-3, but Bosch rallied to take the next two and was never behind in the overtime match, which he won 9-7.

In the No. 2 singles, Lonergan was down 4-3 to Duane Jones and rallied to win, 8-6. The No. 3 singles between Galyon and Robby Tirsch saw the Sawyer jump ahead 5-3 and Tirsch countering to take the next five straight games to with 8-5 and close out the match.

The doubles were purely anticlimactic as Bosch and Lonergan trounced Rumble and Cliff Ferrono, 8-2, and Galyon and John Ivankovic polished off Jones and Tirsch, 8-4.

"They were all tremendous singles matches," said Sawyer coach Jack Welton, "and they were all the margin the Maroons needed to win."

"Our boys rose to the occasion," said Coach John

Nuclear Explosions For Trapped Gas

RIO BLANCO, Colo. (UPI) — Engineers and scientists completed the last check of the triggering devices and began a nine-hour countdown leading to today's explosion of three nuclear devices seven times more powerful than the Hiroshima atom bomb. The explosions, are part of a series of tests aimed at freeing trapped natural gas below the earth's surface. The explosions have the code name "Project Rio Blanco."

The three 30-kiloton devices were to be detonated in a millionth of a second by an Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) test official's flick of a switch in a trailer more than 10 miles away from the blast site. The nine-hour countdown was started after final systems checks of triggering devices Wednesday and a briefing by officials of CER Geonuclear Corp., of Las Vegas, Nev. CER is the AEC's private industry partner in Blanco. "The firing system has been tested and is functioning properly," said AEC Project Rio Blanco site spokesman David Miller. "We made the last minute checks on all the systems. Everything is right on."

Ranch families, most of them unafraid of environmentalists' warnings that radioactivity could escape through cracks in the ground after the blast, were Accountants are musicians: they fiddle with figures.

Before you laugh at the gals in the tight knits — take a look at yourself in your shorts-socks-and-shoes lawn-mowing outfit.

How come those bur windows that wouldn't close all winter are glued shut now that spring is here?

Jean Adams'

TEEN FORUM

CAMPING TRIP: (Q) I am 15. In August I will be 16. My boy friend is 18. To celebrate the end of school we were planning to go to a national forest on a well organized camping trip with a recognized mountain-climbing club.

The trip will last from Friday afternoon until Sunday morning. It will be chaperoned by adult sponsors. Until I ran into a snag, I was planning to share a tent on the trip with a girl friend.

The only reason I wanted to go was to have fun camping out, mountain climbing and hiking. There were no other motives, and my boy friend felt the same.

I think such a outing is completely i my mother should let me go But she won't. What do you think? —No Progress in New Mexico.

(A) You sound sensible, and such a trip would surely be worth while if all the young people participating—including you—are trustworthy, and qualified campers.

Your mother should at least talk with the adult sponsors and get details of the arrangements before she makes up her mind finally.

MOTHER TROUBLE: (Q) When I call my girl friend, her mother always asks who I am. She also sometimes tells me my girl isn't there when I know she is.

I don't get to see her much because I am 15 and in senior high and she is 13 and in junior high.

How can I get her mother to let me call her and visit her and be comfortable doing both? —Brushed Off in Oklahoma.

(A) Visit your girl friend's mother. Ask her if you can come by to see your girl friend when the mother is home. Promise to call on the telephone first.

When the mother sees that you are straightforward and honest and genuinely interested in her daughter, maybe she will change her suspicious attitude.

If she does, and become more hospitable, do not overdo either the phone calls or the visits.

Keep East Out, Is the Idea of club and eventually collected two diamonds and one more club.

"Down one, with a hundred honors," said South. "Glad I didn't bid game with my big hand."

"You can say that again," grumbled North. "The way you play the dummy you should never bid at all."

Do you see where South went wrong? It doesn't require much eyesight. South should have taken a little time at trick one to analyze the whole hand. Then he would have let West hold the trick and would duck again if West continued with the jack.

South's plan would have to be to keep East from ever gaining the lead.

Look how well things would have gone. He would win the third club; draw trumps the same way and lead that same king of spades. West could take the ace of spades or duck. Either way he would never be able to lead East in to lead a spades. West took his ace; put diamond and South would make his partner in with the king three hearts.

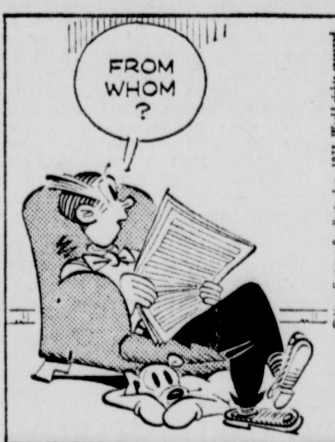

South wasted no time in playing the hand. He took his ace of clubs and ace-king of trumps. Then he laid down his king of spades. West took his ace; put diamond and South would make his partner in with the king three hearts.

Some Television Notes

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes from McDonald's Corp. and its announced in regard to the fact that Thanksgiving Day is also the 10th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

ABC-TV rates the thumbs-down treatment for its announcement that weekly network boxing matches, which faded out long ago not only because of lack of interest but because of viewer distaste at the brutality, will return as a summer series on the network on Saturdays starting July 7. The potential of cable-TV is explored in a half-hour broadcast, "The Cable Revolution," on the non-commercial network Wednesday... Almost 62 percent of American television households had color sets as of April 1, according to NBC research.

Tony Curtis will be the guest host of NBC-TV's "Tonight" show June 1 and 4... CBS-TV's daytime soap opera "The Secret Storm" marked its 5,000th broadcast this month; come February, it will be on the air 20 years.

WHY WE SAY

COINS: This name for one who cuts corners or follows unethical practices can be traced to Roman times. Artisans had a metal gutter called the "chisel" which was used by artisans "after hours" to make counterfeit coins.

SPACE TALK — Astronaut Rusty Schweickart (L) commander of the backup crew for Skylab II, and astronaut Alan Bean (next to pole) work in the Skylab simulator building at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, in an effort to find a way to fabricate a sunshade for the now orbiting space station. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Engineers Working to Salvage Space Mission

HOUSTON (UPI) — With hope increasing hourly, engineers worked around the clock today to design, build and test a giant plastic awning to shade Skylab from the sun's searing heat and let it become a home in orbit for nine men this year.

The plan is to try to dispatch astronauts Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz on their unprecedented space salvage mission Sunday. The countdown for their launch begins tonight at Cape Kennedy.

SkyLab Director William C. Schneider said the equipment and crew may not be ready for a Sunday launching. In that case, the flight will be delayed five more days, or even longer.

A final launch go - no go decision will be made by Saturday afternoon. But Schneider said he hoped to know late today if there is still a chance that the Sunday date could be met.

The fate of Skylab depends on the astronauts' ability to erect the sunshade, either by unrolling it like a home movie screen during a spacewalk, or by reaching from the command ship hatch and unfurling it sail fashion.

Without protection from the sun, Skylab would be unlivable. It lost its own solar protection when a meteoroid shield ripped off shortly after launch Monday. That accident also jammed the ship's big solar wings and cut its power supply by half.

The overheating, however, quickly became the No. 1 concern. Until late Wednesday, officials were not sure they would be able to keep Skylab from becoming so hot it would be ruined.

Flight director Chuck Lewis reported that the 118-foot space station had been jockeyed about so the sun does not beat directly onto the crew quarters yet still feeds enough energy to the ship's four working panels that convert sunlight into electricity.

Temperatures inside Skylab at one time reached 190 degrees. By late Wednesday, temperatures were down to an average of 110 degrees and, for the first time, had stabilized. The sizzling temperatures ruined half the medicine and some film aboard Skylab but officials said it could be replaced.

"I personally am very confident we can manage the vehicle until we get a crew up there," Lewis told reporters in Houston. "I think there will be no problem if we want to wait another 5 or 10 days before we launch a crew."

Groups of engineers at Johnson Space Center here were designing the two types of sunshades. The plastic material already was being processed in Huntsville, Ala., and the extension rods and tools were being manufactured.

Schneider said the three Skylab 1 astronauts would erect the sun shield as soon as possible after rendezvousing with Skylab 270 miles above Earth. They also will examine the stuck solar panels and Schneider did not rule out the possibility they might try to dislodge one with a long pole.

But the main concern was the sunshade.

"If we get the solar shield deployed, we think we'll be able to go ahead with a full 28-day mission and carry out a great number of experiments," Schneider said.

SkyLab also carries provisions for two more three-man crews to fly 56-day missions. Schneider said there was a chance those flights could proceed too.

Turn Right at the Sign That Says Lake Katrine

Watergate Fallout . . . Another Victim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The fallout over Watergate has claimed another victim—Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) Chairman G. Bradford Cook.

Cook resigned Wednesday after only 10 weeks as head of the regulatory agency and a few days after a grand jury connected him with two administration Cabinet officials in an alleged scheme to fix a stock fraud case for financier Robert L. Vesco in return for a $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Conspiracy charges were leveled last week against Vesco, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, and former Commerce Secretary and re-election finance chief Maurice J. Stans.

No formal charges were placed against Cook, who claimed Wednesday to be caught in "a web of circumstance" and denied any wrongdoing in the matter.

Nevertheless, Cook said the publicity jeopardized the effectiveness of the SEC so long as he remained chairman. Without directly mentioning Watergate, Cook told reporters, "everybody is focusing on what's bad . . . that's an impossible situation for this agency."

The 36-year-old Chicago lawyer said he volunteered his resignation to the White House. "I retain my complete confidence in our country, its institutions and myself," he said in a brief note to Nixon.

There was an ironic twist to the case. Although Mitchell and Stans, with Cook's support, allegedly tried to take the heat off Vesco, the SEC last November returned one of the biggest fraud complaints in its history against the New Jersey financier. Cook, then the commission's general counsel, was the key figure in building the government's case which charged Vesco with milking $224 million from four mutual funds he controlled through his International Overseas Services Ltd. empire.

Cook subsequently admitted deleting reference to Vesco's campaign gift from the SEC complaint. The grand jury said Stans requested this action from Cook on several occasions.

But Cook strongly rejected the inference that Vesco's money was, in effect, a bribe for favorable treatment at the hands of the SEC.

"There was no attempt made to stop the Vesco case. Absolutely none that I'm aware of in this agency," Cook stressed.

Robert Vesco and the activities of those around him represented a menace and a threat to investor confidence everywhere," he added.

In an intriguing sidelight, Cook said then SEC Chairman William J. Casey was aware of, and "concurred" in, dropping the reference to Vesco's political gift. Casey, now an undersecretary of state, was traveling in Latin America and could not be reached for comment.

Gold Price Sinks Again

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold sank again today in London and the dollar regained more of its lost value.

At the opening of the London gold market, the world's biggest, the yellow metal sold at an average of $104 an ounce—a $1 drop from the price at the close of business Wednesday.

In the foreign exchange market, the dollar showed more strength against the British pound with an opening price of $2.5375. At one point Tuesday it took $2.57 to buy a pound.

Markets were still cooling off from the gold fever that sent prices soaring to historic highs Monday and Tuesday and gave the dollar a beating—by making it more expensive to buy foreign currencies.

The price today was $10 lower than its highest peak in London and $20.12 lower than the price reached in Paris this week. But it was still more than twice the official U.S. price of $42.22 an ounce.

However, dealers said the great gold rush could resume and that the dollar was still not in the clear.

"Nothing is certain," a London dealer said Wednesday. "It is difficult to know which ways things will move. It could be quieter, but..."

Cautions followed a day of trading that saw the price of one ounce of gold drop $5.50—to a closing price of $105, still almost three times its official price.

The market went mad Tuesday, when gold hit $110.50 in London, the world's main gold market, and $128.50 in Paris. Both were far higher than any time in history and caused the dollar to fall sharply in price.

Dealers were still not sure, 48 hours later, what caused the gold rush and the dollar's troubles, but many said it reflected a general lack of faith in paper money.

Dealers guessed this was inspired by everything from the Watergate scandal to a huge influx of Middle East money.

The gold and money market follows the laws of supply and demand. The cost of gold soared because of higher demand while the price of dollars fell because of a lack of demand.

In any case, the dollar rallied Wednesday as the gold fever cooled.

Foreign exchange dealers said oil-rich Middle East nations were switching back into dollars from gold. The London bullion firms, dollar's price in London and elsewhere reflected a move away from the yellow metal.

In London, it took $2.54 to buy one pound, a slight improvement from the $2.55 at the start of business Wednesday.

In Paris, where gold dropped to $111 an ounce Wednesday, the dollar price was 4.455 francs, up from 4.415 francs at the close of business one day earlier.

But dealers warned more trouble could lay ahead.

"All we need is for the Middle East speculators to come back into the market and the lower gold prices could be brief," said a dealer for John Matthey, one of the major London bullion firms.
